VETERANS OF TWO REGIMENTS HERE

Survivors of Forty-Fourth and Eighty-Eighth Indiana in Reunion.

BOTH DECIDE TO RETURN NEXT YEAR

Soldiers Who Marched Away from Camp Allen Years Ago Meet Again.

Survivors of two old Indiana volanteer regiments—the Forty-fourth and the Eighty-eighth—recruited in old Camp Allen in the dark days of the Civil war, came back to Fort Wayne today for their annual reunion. Comrades, their wives and their children are renewing the happy associations of earlier years, the Forty fourth veterans meeting at the Elektron building, and the Eighty-eighth association assembling at Robison park.

Fully three hundred members of the Eighty-eighth regimental reunion association, comprising not only the veterans of the regiments, but their wives, sons and daughters who are honorary members of the organization, are at Robison park gathering, and one of the features of the occasion was the dinner served in the pavillion there.

Fort Wayne Again Chosen.

At the business s ssion of the Eighty-eighth regiment today, Fort Wayne was again chosen as the place for holding the regimental reunion on the fourth Thursday of August, 1910, and officers were elected as follows:

Colonel—Capt. F. F. Boltz, of Bluffton.

Adjutant—M. M. Thompson, of Fort Wayne.

Every company in the old regiment is represented in the Fort Wayne gathering, and it is the largest reunion the regiment has held in five years. The commissioned officers present include Lieut. Roy Edgerly, Company A., Elkhart; Capt. W. C. Hollopeter, company C. Huntertown; Lieut. M. M. Thompson, company D. Fort Wayne; Capt. F. F. Boltz, Bluffton; and Lieut. Josiah King, Fort Wayne; Capt. W. D. Wildman, of Kansas, company G.; Lieut. Joseph Rainier, Auburn, company H.

Capt. F. F. Boltz delivered the address of welcome this afternoon, and the response was by T. A. Pattee. Attorney E. G. Hoffman delivered the principal address of the day, and many of the veterans gave interesting reminiscences of army life.

Officers of Forty-Fourth.

Officers for the Forty-Fourth Indiana Regimental association were elected at the meeting in the Elektron building this afternoon as follows:

President—Joseph W. Hersh, Avilla.

Vice President—William Engle, Fort Wayne.

Secretary-Treasurer—F. W. Willis, Waterloo.

This is Captain Willis' twenty-eighth year of service as secretary of the association.

The morning session found about sixty-eight survivors present and after the registering upon Secretary Frank Willis' ledger, John J. Gillette, of Lagrange, gave the annual address as president, serving as an introduction for the day. He took his hearers back to the days between 1861 and 1865, when they served together in the battles of Donelson, Shiloh, Stone River, Chickamauga and Mission Ridge, besides numerous less important engagements.

All Meetings in Fort Wayne.

Unless some other places offer special inducements for a special date, hereafter all the reunions of the Forty-fourth will be centered in Fort Wayne, as this city can be so easily reached from any and all points of Northern Indiana and the veterans can find so many more advantages here. This was decided upon at the morning session.

Also at that time the first of the reports from the obituary committee were heard, but the noon hour, from 12 to 1 o'clock, intervened and the re-

NIGHT WAS HOTTEST OF THE PRESENT SUMMER

Thermometer Fell But Little and Thousands Sought Park for Relief.

Friday night was beyond all question the warmest of the present summer. Even the coming of evening brought little relief from the sweltering heat of the day in Fort Wayne, and thousands sought Robison park in the effort to get a cooling breeze. The crowd there was very close to 4,000 people, but all were brought back to the city before the cars stopped running for the night at 11:30 o'clock.

The thermometer which had reached 94 degrees during the afternoon was still at 81 degrees at 8 o'clock last evening, and the lowest point reached was 68 degrees at 4 o'clock this morning.

Today's highest temperature was 92 degrees at 11 o'clock, but a cooling breeze at the noon hour had sent the mercury down to 86 degrees.

ENGLISH AVIATOR IS NEW MONARCH

Henry Farman in a Biplane Smashes all Records at Rheims.

SAILS 111 MILES WITHOUT A BREAK

Darkness Put an End to Triumphant Voyage in the Sky.

Rheims, Aug. 27.—Henry Farman, the English aviator flying here, today in a bi-plane of his own design, exceeded all existing airship records for distance covered and time in the air. In covering over 111 miles he broke Hubert Latham's record, made yesterday in a monoplane of 95.88 miles, as well as Louis Paulsan's record for time of 2 hours, 53 minutes and 24 seconds, made the day before in a Voisin biplane. Farman was competing for the Grand Prix de la Champagne to be awarded to the aeroplane of either the bi-plane or the monoplane type that covers the greatest distance without replenishing its supply of fuel or oil. Louis Paulsan's record for this event was 83.07 miles.

It was almost dark when Farman completed his eighteenth round, giving him a total distance of 180 kilometers or 111.78 miles. Search lights located on the top of the tribunes are sweeping the plain and aiding the daring aviator in his flight.

Farman went into the air at 4:21:30 o'clock this afternoon and had until 7:30 to fly. A wild burst of cheering broke from the grand stand when Farman complet d his fiftieth round and it was seen that he purposed to continue. Latham came down yesterday shortly after having completed his fifteenth lap.

Farman stopped at the conclusion of his nineteenth lap. This gave him a total distance of 190 kilometers, not counting the curves in his flight, or 118.06 miles.

The committee ceased recording Farman's rounds at 7:30 o'clock. He had then covered 180 kilometers or 111.78 miles in hours, 4 minutes and 36 2-5 seconds.

The aerial races here are daily arousing increased interest and excitement throughout France as well as in Europe generally. The published accounts of the marvelous flights, in which record after record has been broken, have gripped the public attention and thousands of people are flocking hither from all parts of the continent.

The American contingent is very large, and many Americans traveling in other countries are abandoning their original plans in order to have the satisfaction of witnessing some of the performances of this historic week. Everybody is enthusiastic and the spectators declare that the sight of the beautifully winged airships flying steadily for hours seems like a dream.

The program for today included the finals in the grand Prix de la Champagne, or competition for the greatest distance covered without taking on fresh supplies of fuel and oil which carries the largest prize of the meeting.

Sporting Blood Was Up.

The record today was 95.88 miles, made by Latham yesterday in two hours, 18 minutes, 9 3-5 seconds, and the contest promised to be an exciting one. The sporting blood of the sky pilots was up. Louis Paulhan, whose record fell before Latham's performance of yesterday declared today that he did not propose to allow Latham to carry off the prize, and the Wright managers have decided to make a desperate effort to regain their lost prestige. Latham himself has announced that he would try to beat his own record.

Paulhan with a tank carrying ninety litres of gasoline, enough to last him five hours went up shortly before 11 o'clock but his oil feeder was not working well and he alighted for repairs, after having traveled a couple of miles.

Paulhan Damages Machine.

The contest tomorrow for the international cup known otherwise as the Gordon Bennett trophy, to go to the aviator who covers two laps, or 12.34 miles in the shortest time, is regarded as the principal event of aviation week. Both the Wright and the English machines are considered too slow to stand any chance, and the contest consequently lies between Bleriot, Curtiss and Latham. Bleriot's big machine was fitted up with new wings and propellers and the pilot announced that he would try out his aeroplane ship. Cortlandt F. Bishop, president of the Aero club of America, and Roger Wallace, president of the Aero club of Great Britain, held a conference this morning in the matter of the decision of the committee to allow Bleriot to use a machine in the race for the international cup other than the one with which he qualified. They decided that the issue raised concerned the French flyers only, and if the other contestants

SHERIFF TAKES HIS AX AND SMASHES WHEEL

First Case of Destroying Gaming Device in County.

For the first time in the history of Allen county a gaming device was destroyed by order of court, when Sheriff A. M. Reichelderfer took his ax in hand this afternoon and put a roulette wheel out of business at the county jail. Tomorrow he will make his return to the judge of the city court, showing that he has carried out the order and that will end the chapter.

The wheel is one captured in a police raid on the rooms over the Gierhart & Swift saloon on Calhoun street, when four or five men were found engaged in a big battle with it. Charles Beebe registered at police headquarters as the owner of the wheel and the order was given when his case was heard. There was no opposition on the part of the owners.

The owners of the saloon were charged with renting rooms for gaming purposes and when they were arraigned they agreed to make no fight and entered pleas of guilty and were fined $10 and costs each. The sheriff did not extend any invitations to his matinee and he just simply rendered the wheel useless and will throw it in the junk pile.

GETTING READY TO PLACE HARRIMAN UNDER KNIFE

Evident Preparations at Arden for Surgical Operation.

Arden N. Y. Aug. 27.—Nothing authoritive regarding the condition of E. H. Harriman was obtainable here today up to 1 p. m. Two men who came up by train from New York and who were said to be physicians were taken up the incline plane to the Harriman home. One of them had a small hand bag such as doctors usually carry. On another train were two tanks of oxygen, which were sent up to Mr. Harriman's house.

A portable hospital truck was received at the Turner railroad station today consigned to Wm. McClellan, manager of stores at the Harriman estate. Shortly after its arrival it was taken in an automobile from the depot to the foot of the inclined railway leading to the Harriman residence. The truck is like that used in hospitals during an operation.

CHANGE AT THE AIRDOME.

Only Pictures and Songs at Open Air Theater Next Week.

The management of the Majestic Airdome today announced a change of policy under which beginning next Monday vaudeville will be discontinued and programs of motion pictures and illustrated songs will be given. Three thousand feet of films will be shown at each performance, and the admission has been cut to five cents.

PINCHOT FIGHT IS TO BE KEPT DOWN

Conservation Congress is Begun at Seattle—The Day's Program.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27.—When the second day's session of the national conservation congress met today there was a general feeling of relief that the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy had been shelved. It was stated semi-officially that the report of the committee on resolutions will make no reference to the disagreement between the secretary of the intrior and the chief forester.

A majority of the delegates are anxious to ignore the controversy.

Joseph N. Teal, of Oregon, presided at the morning session and Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot was the principal speaker, his subject being "Principles of Conservation."

Three Primary Objects.

"Conservation has three primary objects," said Mr. Pinchot.

"First, to develop our natural resources so that this generation may have its full share and use of the riches of the earth.

"Second, to prevent needless waste and destruction of these resources, so that future generations may likewise have their just part in the material sound advantages of prosperity.

"Third, to see to it that the great natural resources so developed and protected shall be used permanently for the welfare of the many instead of for the present profit for the few.

"Development of resources and opportunities, prevention of waste and loss, protection of public interests by foresight, prudence, thrift and intelligence—this applies with clear and undeniable force to the conservation of natural resources. But it applies just as clearly and undeniably to the conservation of every interest and necessity of the people.

"The conservation point of view is as valuable in education as it is in forestry. It applies to the body politic as it does to the earth and its monarchs. Municipal franchises are as properly within its sphere as franchises for water power. It is as patent to the subject of railroads as to that of waterways, and the training of our people in effective citizenship is as germane to it as the increase of productiveness in our soils.

"President Roosevelt said that the policy of conservation was the most typical example of the policies which bear his mark. Fruitful, vital and beneficient, these policies are both deeply needed and widely cherished by our people."

A. B. Farquah, of Pennsylvania, representative of the American Civic association spoke on "Conservation of Human Life and Health."

Importance of Forests.

A. B. Farquhar, representing Pennsylvania, the American civic association and the Pennsylvania forestry association was a speaker at the conservation congress today. His subject was "Conservation." He said in part:

"The forest is the central and vital

ST. JOE WATERS CLAIM A VICTIM

Benjamin Clemmer, Thirteen Years Old, Tumbles from Boat and Sinks.

BODY RECOVERED IN NINETY MINUTES

Was Standing Up When It is Thought His Heart Became Affected.

The waters of the St. Joe river claimed as a victim Benjamin Clemmer, thirteen year old son of Mrs. Ellen Clemmer, 1124 West Jefferson street, at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, at a point a few feet "above the island" along the St. Joe road. The boy had taken a boat with his brother, Edward Clemmer, and Joseph Besancon, and was making for a place to go in swimming.

The story of his brother, Edward, is that Benjamin stood up straight in the boat for an instant and then toppled forward into the waters. He arose but once, when his brother jumped in after him, but after swimming around as long as he could, was forced to seek the shore. No trace of the lad was seen until his body was dragged from the bed of the river by Stationmaster John Terry a few minutes after 2 o'clock.

All of the boys had taken off their heavier garments, intending to swim about with their underclothes on. While the youngest lad was able to swim, he was not very adept at it and it was the intention to let him row about for a short time. The water is about eighteen or twenty feet deep where the drowning occurred.

The brother, Edward, says the only thing he can attribute the drowning to is the condition of his brother's heart, which has always been considered weak. He thinks that while standing up in the boat his heart became affected.

SCOTTISH SPORTS TOMORROW.

Caledonian Society Field Day at Robison Park.

Tomorrow will occur the annual field day of the Caledonian society at Robison park, and the sports promise to bring out some lively contests. The quoiting will begin at 11 o'clock, and the race program starts at 1 o'clock. Entries are open to all.

One of the big events of the day will be the 100-yard dash between M. S. Willson, of the Electric works, and John Davidson, of the Knitting Mills, each of whom is going in to win.

THE WEATHER.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Indiana—Partly cloudy with showers tonight or Saturday, cooler Sunday.

Ohio—Unsettled tonight and Saturday.

Lower Michigan—Showers tonight or Saturday, cooler Saturday.

GOT AN OVERDOSE OF CHLOROFORM

Mrs. Louva A. Foreman is Found Lifeles in Her Bed at Home.

NECK WAS CLASPED BY ARMS OF CHILD

Theory of Accident is Well Sustained—Used Drug to Induce Sleep.

Mrs. Louva A. Foreman, wife of Harry Foreman, was found dead in bed at the home of Harry Schlacter, 820 Davis street, early this morning and the presence of a vial partially filled with chloroform pointed to the cause of her death but there were no indications that she sought her own life and Dr. A. J. Kesler, the coroner, stated after an investigation, that in his opinion death was due to an accident.

MRS. LOUVA FOREMAN,
Women Who Died From Overdose of Chloroform.

A rather remarkable circumstance in connection with the case is that Mildred Schlacter, seven years old and a niece, slept in the same bed with Mrs. Foreman and was found with her arms clasped tightly about her aunt's neck this morning but she did not know her aunt was dead until an effort was made to rouse her.

The chloroform was in a two ounce vial and had been purchased at D. L. Benton's drug store on West Main street. About half of the contents had been used and the cork was in the bottle when the coroner found it under her pillow. She had frequently bought the drug before and on each occasion said she wanted it for cleaning ribbons, but the fact that the members of the family did not know she ever had any in the house leads to the conclusion that she occasionally inhaled it to induce sleep.

Husband is in the East.

Her husband left about two weeks ago for Lancastser, Pa., where his mother died and took with him their daughter, six years old. He was detained in the settlement of the estate and although they had occasional "tiffs" there was no trouble between them and no misunderstanding that would warrant the theory of suicide, and all the surroundings indicate that in her effort to secure rest she used too much of the drug.

She was twenty-three years old and a sister to Mrs. Schlacter, with whom she had made her home since last September. Her husband had been here since last Thanksgiving. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Snyder and although she was born in Van Wert she spent most of her life in Fort Wayne. About four years ago she and her husband went to Lancaster, Pa., to live and he and the daughter who is with her father survive.

Mrs. Foreman walked from her home down to Benton's drug store about 7 o'clock last night and bought the chloroform. She returned and retired with her niece about 9:30 o'clock. She told Mrs. Schlacter to call her at 6 o'clock so that they could help with the weekly house cleaning and finish up in time to go up town to do some shopping. She was in the best of spirits and never had she hinted that she would take her own life. Her friends remember her as a jolly young woman who never took trouble seriously and they are firmly convinced that she came to her death by accident.

Did Not Answer When Called.

Frequently when she was called in the morning she did not answer although she was awake and when Mrs. Schlacter told her to get up and did not receive an answer she thought little of it and went on with her work. Finally she went up stairs and said: "Come on kid, you can't fool anybody. Get up and hustle." She did not move and when Mrs. Foreman placed her hands upon her sister's face she was cold in death.

She gave the alarm and the coroner was called and he said that death had taken place several hours before. His theory is that Mrs. Foreman spilled the chloroform on her pillow and was overcome by it after she had placed the cork in the bottle.

The husband has worked a number of places in the city and is a jockey. He was employed for a time by C. A. Dunkleberg as a hostler. Beside the husband and daughter the surviving members of the family are the father, who lives in Columbus, but is here on a visit, Mrs. Schlacter and another sister, Mrs. Herman Merkle, of Columbus.

1909 INSTITUTE A THING OF PAST

Drs. Winship and Phillips on Closing Day Keep Interest Alive.

WINSHIP ATTACKS SCHOOL CRITICS

Says There is Danger of Adventurers Coming to Dictate to Schools.

The 1909 Allen County Teachers' institute now is a thing of the past. Drs. A. E. Winship, noted educator and editor of the Boston Journal of Education, and G. M. Phillips, principal of the State Normal school at West Chester, Pa., gave their closing lectures today. The interest in the talks and the proceedings of the institute which has been intense since the opening day, was kept kindled and the teachers are sorry to have to give up the two men who have been so interesting as well as instructive.

There is little doubt that the institution just closed today has been one of the most gratifying ever held in Allen county. From the very beginning Drs. Winship and Phillips found their way to the interest of the hearers and with the undivided attention which they have been paid, have been able to be very helpful to the county pedagogues. Though Superintendent H. G. Felger has been rather a silent official during the past week, it is to him that a great share of the credit for the institute belongs for he contracted with the two speakers and planned and carried out the details. Prof William Miles has been more than successful in his part in the institute this year, the music being one of the big features.

Bitterly Assails School Critics.

Among the interesting words of today were those this morning of Dr. Winship, when he spoke upon "Schools and Their Critics." He says the schools are jeopardized by sensational and mischievous assaults by literary adventurers, ill-advised and misinformed reformers and bad politicians. These insidious attacks upon public confidence in the schools and upon popular regard for educational leaders are the more dangerous because there is a lull following the recent intense scathment for the "Little Red School House." Mr. Winship says that if these vicious criticisms of the schools and teachers succeed, the schools and public pride will be at the merciless dictation of various adventurers. The schools will be steadily improved in the future as they have been in the past. The schools have developed as rapidly as any phase of American life and the teachers and other educators will maintain the pace of progress. All this can be demonstrated while none of the criticisms have. The public needs the facts and the truths about schools to counteract the effect of statements which have no truths behind them and untruths with no apology for their utterance. Mr. Winship called attention to many criticisms and ridiculed their absurdity.

No Teachers Praise Too Much.

Dr. Phillips, who closed the morning session, took as his subject, "Hints in School Management." He urged the importance of the subject that nine-tenths of the failures of teachers were due to failure in management. He urged courtesy to pupils, the prevention of mischief by being there; the value of praise, saying that he had never known a teacher who praised too much; some perhaps, who praised unwisely. He cautioned teachers against saying beforehand what they would do in a case of discipline and urged that every child be heard before he is punished. He emphasized the importance of good teaching in discipline. He gave suggestions as to the care of school property, especially advising keeping things fixed up. He advised teachers to govern just as kindly as possible, but to govern; that there could be no good work in school without good order.

MEET TO CONSIDER A NEW FACTORY PROJECT

Decatur Concern Has Made an Offer to Locate in Fort Wayne.

The proposition for the location of a motor car factory in Fort Wayne will be under consideration at a meeting to be held at the Anthony Wayne club this evening, and gentlemen who have interested themselves in the matter believe the opportunity to secure an additional industrial concern for Fort Wayne is one that should not be overlooked.

The Coppock Motor Car company, of Decatur, has made a proposition under which it will remove its works to this city and embark in the manufacture of its product on a much larger scale than is possible with present facilities at Decatur. The proposition involves the purchase of approximately $100,000 of the debenture bonds of the company by Fort Wayne people, with a later option of exchange of the bonds for stock in the concern on a basis that seems to be very fair. The matter has enlisted the attention of several prominent Fort Wayne business men.

PEONAGE SUITS MAY BE STARTED BY UNCLE SAM

Federal Action Likely to be Directed Against Big Car Plant.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 27.—The first testimony offered in the federal investigation into the charges of peonage against officials of the Pressed Steel Car company, in which it is alleged force was used to compel imported workmen to work, developed late yesterday.

The Pressed Steel Car company's attorney attempted to hold the man who testified that he was made to work against his will, but this was prevented by the Austro-Hungarian consular attorney and the assistant federal district attorney.

United States District Attorney Jordon refused to comment on the day's disclosures, but it is said by those in a position to know that suit on peonage charges more than likely will be filed against minor officials of the car plant within the next ten days. A suit against President Hoffstot is unlikely, according to attorneys interested in the case.

Food Bad, Treatment Rough.

All testimony during the day was taken in the form of affidavits. Of the first dozen witnesses called little information upon which to base peonage charges was elicited, the witnesses for the greater part declaring that their food had been bad and their treatment rough, but citing no definite persons as being responsible.

Alexander Friedman, a Hungarian of New York, was the witness who made the sensational charges of the day. He said he was brought here fifteen days ago with 100 other men from New York, and alleges they were brought under false impressions.

He said the workmen were given to understand there was no strike at the works of the Pressed Steel Car company. He said he was in the plant several days before he learned of the strike. Friedman alleged that the car company picked out the strongest looking imported workmen and made guards of them. He testified that these guards handled the men in a rough manner.

Supper Pay for Hour's Work.

Friedman said he had been at work in the plant a few days when he was asked if he did not want to make some overtime money, and when he replied affirmatively he was taken to the kitchen of the commissary of the car plant and told to work there. Friedman said he refused. After so doing, he stated, he was roughly handled by the workmen guards, who took him to the box car jails. Constabulary officers refused to lock him up, he testified.

Friedman said the workmen guards then took him before company officials and asserted that the officials said they would compel him to work in the kitchen. This they succeeded in doing, according to the witness, who also was told that his pay for the hour's enforced work would be his supper.

Friedman did not claim he had been forced to stay inside of the car plant, but stated that he could point out men who had been compelled to remain at work against their wills.

BOARD HAS SHORT WORK.

Disposes of Small Amount of Routine Business.

The board of work last night held a short session at which a small amount of routine business was disposed of. At the request of residents of French avenue an old petition filed in 1905 for a sewer was dug up and plans ordered.

J. F. Rodabaugh stated that a permit had been taken out for a building he is erecting on South Calhoun street before the new ordinance went into effect and he wanted relief from the instructions of the building inspector to put in fire walls. The matter was taken under advisement.

Plans providing for the opening of old Main street for a boulevard were adopted and resolutions for sidewalks on the north side of Organ avenue from Beaver to Broadway and on the east side of Wabash avenue from Maumee avenue to Wayne trace were confirmed. A remonstrance was filed by the only resident property owner on Oneida street between Elmwood and Eden against the proposed sidewalk on that street and was sustained.

The contract for printing the supplies for the building inspector was awarded to the Globe Printing company at a price of $122.50.

DOCTORS FILE BOND AND APPEAL TO COURTS

Hot Springs Men Think They Can Enter the Practice Again.

Bonds were filed with County Clerk Joseph N. Mason today by Drs. Lee M. Barney and Bernard J. Krowenstrot, formerly connected with the Hot Springs establishment here, as a preliminary step in an appeal to the courts to set aside the action of the state board of medical registration in revoking their licenses to practice in Indiana.

The clerk will notify the secretary of the board who will prepare a transcript in the case to be forwarded here and upon this the appeal will be fought. They contend that the action is illegal on the ground that the law provides that the affidavits must set out specifically the advertisements that were used and the cases that came to the doctors and were treated under them.

The record of the proceedings will become the complaint in the case and they will be attacked on the grounds that they are insufficient as soon as soon as they are submitted to the courts. Barrett and Morris represent Dr. Barney and Robinson, Luecke and Geake will act for Dr. Krowenstrot.

Court Notes.

Diederich Norvold has filed an amended complaint in his damage suit against Henry Franke in which he fixes his damages at $2,500 instead of $3,000. He says he was permanently injured by having a plank thrown at him and the injury caused a running sore.

Louisa Bostick has filed suit against Alexander Mergenthiem, demanding the possession of the store room occupied by him as a millinery establishment on Calhoun street. It is alleged the lease has expired and damages are demanded. Creighton H. Williams is the attorney.

Christina Dickmeyer was granted a divorce from Harry Dickmeyer in the superior court today and given the custody of their child. He was charged with cruelty.

ASKS NOON CLOSING.

The Retail Merchants' association is asking the cordial co-operation of all the people of the city to make Fort Wayne day at Robison park, September 1, a big success, and to this end is requesting that all business houses close at noon on that day. The association has issued the following statement:

"The Fort Wayne Retail Merchants' association requests that the citizens of the Fort Wayne show their appreciation of the efforts of the management of Robison park to attract people to Fort Wayne, as well as giving the residents of our city a pleasure resort that has required great efforts on their part to make it one of the most attractive in the state of Indiana.

"We feel that it is a part of our civic pride that their efforts hould be encouraged. Therefore, as they have designated Wednesday, September 1st as Fort Wayne day, we ask that all busines houses show their appreciation by closing at noon, September 1st, that all citizens who have our civic pride at heart, join with the business people in making Fort Wayne Day a big success.

"Special attractions are promised by the park management."

WENT IN AND BEAT PANAMA EDITOR TO DEATH

Fighting Man Did Not Like What Had Been Writ of a Lady.

Panama, Aug. 27.—Gen. Herbert O. Jeffries, leader in the Panama revolution and fighter in many gun battles, yesterday killed William Nicholas Chandler, editor of the Panama Press. The killing occurred in the Press office and resulted from an article printed in the Press and supposed to reflect on Mrs. Clause E. Guyant, sister-in-law of Jeffries.

Soon after the paper was published this morning Jeffries entered the Press office and demanded an apology. Chandler refused, and the two men grappled. Jeffries drew a revolver and when Chandler advanced struck him on the head with the butt of the weapon. Chandler, dazed, was struck blow after blow until he sank to the floor.

Both Arrested; Victim Soon Dies.

One of the office boys summoned a policeman. A police surgeon was called and Chandler's wounds dressed. Both men then were placed under arrest. Later Chandler, who was released, became unconscious. It was found that Jeffries' revolver had fractured his skull in two places and he died in less than an hour.

The article to which Jeffries objected appears in the latest number of the Press. While no names are mentioned, the affair with which it deals has been such general gossip on the isthmus that there is no chance of a mistake being made. It is common talk that Mrs. Guyant, Jeffries sister-in-law, having gone to the Taboga sanitarium to recuperate from an attack of malaria, became intoxicated. It is alleged that while in this condition a hospital physician put her to bed, and the gossips said the doctor remained in the room longer than necessary under the circumstances. Her husband, at that time, was in Panama.

Elopement Caused Much Talk.

Mrs. Guyant before her marriage was Miss Estella A. Lang. She is only 18 years old. She and Consul General Guyant eloped last June and were married in Colon. That affair caused a lot of talk at the time.

Jeffries was born in New York and commanded the Pacific flotilla of the Panama republic when that nation came into being. He is a graduate of West Point, an athlete, and has attained the reputation of being a thorough daredevil.

He first gained this reputation in Guatemala under the first Barrios. He was leader in many battles there, but finally fell into disfavor with Barrios. He was exiled and fled to Honduras with Gen. P. P. Brannon, a redoubtable Pennsylvania fighter. Both were welcomed by Don Luis Bogran, known as the Diaz of Central America, then president. They planned the ambuscade which resulted in the slaughter of nearly 400 Guatemalan invaders.

Inseparable for Months.

Among the Americans who flocked to the capital at Tegucigalpa when Borgran became president was a New Yorker named Palmer, a polished gentleman, and the possessor of a magnificent baritone voice. Palmer and Jeffries became chummy at once, and for months were inseparable.

Their popularity roused the jealousy and envy of an American named Cecil, then in charge of the telegraph system of the country. Cecil, while carefully avoiding Jeffries, constantly sought a quarrel with Palmer. On the night of a presidential ball, Cecil, drunk and noisy, met Palmer in the barroom of the Picalilly hotel, grossly insulted him, and then shot him dead. So powerful was Cecil's influence that he was not even arrested.

Jeffries was at Yuscaran, two days distant by the usual mode of travel, but he made the journey in twenty-four hours, killing two mules en route. He wired Cecil that he was coming to kill him.

Comes Early to Shoot and Kill.

When Jeffries rode up to the hotel, fully twelve hours before he was expected, he found Cecil in the barroom, surrounded by a number of native officers, boasting of what he would do to Palmer's friend. Jeffries' entrance was the occasion of a stampede on the part of the natives.

Two shots were fired almost together. Jeffries strode into the yards, quietly mounted his mule and, without a look backward, rode away. Cecil was found a few minutes later dead, with a bullet in his heart.

Following this Jeffries built railroads and fought throughout the length and breadth of Salvador, Honduras, and Colombia. Sometimes he fought for the government and sometimes for the rebels.

MENZE.

Mrs. Mary Menze, widow of Fred Menze, died this morning at the Old People's home in Monroe, Mich., at the age of 78 years. Mrs. Menze was a native of Germany, but resided in Fort Wayne fifty years, and during the past three years has lived at the Monroe institution.

Nearest relatives surviving are Mrs. Henry Klobe, Mrs. John H. Peters and Mrs. George F. Gable, of this city. The remains will be brought to Fort Wayne and taken to the home of Mr. Gable, 1420 Lillie street.

point in the conservation issue, for there is no material thing that is connected with the interest of the great mass of the people in so many ways. The value of the timber, great and varied as it is and must always be, is one of less important of these ways; for the vegetable kingdom has already furnished us with fuel in other forms, and may do more for us in the future than it has ever done, while the progress of invention has been largely shown in the substitution of mineral materials for wood in tool and building construction. A more important way in which our interests are involved in the preservation of the forests is through their influence on the flow of springs and streams. Forests may not produce rainfall, but in the much-needed work of turning so irregular and capricious a visitation as the rains of heaven into the steady, regular river-flow demanded by our internal commerce—to say nothing of agriculture depending on irrigation—they have no substitute.

Abuse of Taxation.

"If it were only with neglect that our national and state governments could be charged in their treatment of our precious heritage of forests, the case would be serious enough against them; but they make it even worse by acts that, did we not know them due rather to heedlessness or stupidity we could only ascribe to malignant enmity. Of such character is their abuse of the power of taxation.

"But this direct tax on timber lands is not all, nor the worst. Although the wide extent of the forests of the union, governing the water supply at a distance, some times of many hundreds of miles, raises it to the rank of a national concern, yet the national government does not hesitate to stepin, insisting that the timber this country uses must be taken all from its own woodland, and not in any part from a neighboring country better able to spare it. That is the meaning of the duty on imported lumber. The tax is retained because no one sufferers by it except everybody who has to use timber for any purpose, and everybody who has an interest in maintaining the nation's water courses, while the beneficiaries are doubtless honorable enough personally, but very few in number."

Dr. W. J. McGee, the soil-water expert, delivered an address on "Relative Importance of Our Natural Resources."

Haven't Enough Water.

Dr. McGee divided resources of the country into five classes, lands, water, forests, minerals and human health. He ranked water as the most important of the natural resources as all life depends upon it.

"We are just beginning to realize that few countries have enough water for full production and population" he said.

"Certainly our country has not. Fully a third is practically unproductive and uninhabited by reason of indifferent rain fall. Even in the remaining two-thirds, the rain fall is hardly adequate.

"In the light of recent knowledge concerning the role of water in the vital development of the earth, the five efficiencies become clearer.

"Th efficiency of the soil depends primarily on its capacity for storing water. The efficiency of plants is measured by their capacity for growth, itself dependent upon water. The efficiency of animals is akin to that of plants.

"The efficiency of man is measured primarily by individual capacity for successful effort, itself depending on vigor of vital processes. In the current state of opinion the ideal means of conserving and increasing human efficiency lies in the prevention of disease and in the cure and in the protection of infants and an invalids."

A Plea for Wild Birds.

"The Conservation of Wild Birds," was discussed by William L. Finley, of Portland, Ore., lecturer of the National Association of Audubon societies.

Mr. Finley declared that to destroy the wild birds is to destroy the forests and he offered to show the important part they take in protecting the agriculturist and the horticulturist from the ravages of insects.

There are people, he said, who can see use in nothing that has no commercial value or use. Taking this as a basis. Mr. Finley suecified the vast numbers of insect pests destroyed by the wild feathered creatures. He noted the robin, which has been found to devour 175 caterpillars in a day, and instanced the finding of over one hundred potato bugs in the craw of one Bob White, and two spoonfuls of chinch bugs in another; a mother sparrow, he said, had fed seventeen grasshoppers and two spiders to its seven day old fledglings in sixty-seven minutes.

In Nebraska there once existed multitudes of black birds and the farmers became convinced they were damaging the crops. Poison was set for them and they, with the wild game birds, were destroyed in vast numbers. With the disappearance of the birds came the locusts, and whole sections of the country was devastated. Eight hundred million dollars, the speaker declared, is the estimated annual loss from insects and rodent pests.

Mr. Finley's words in speaking of the destruction of plumage birds were bitter and his denunciation of the use of plumes by women was scatching.

"It is," he said, "just as much a woman's business to look beautiful as some people think it is to cook a meal or wash the dishes, but the carcass of a bird in a bonnet never made any ugly woman beautiful, or is it necessary to make a good looking woman attractive."

ENGLISH AVIATOR IS NEW MONARCH

are satisfied the foreigners have no reason to protest.

Glenn Curtiss, the American aviator, after consideration, filed a protest against his penalization of one-tenth of his time in the contest for the Prix de la vitesse on the ground that he was distinctly informed that no penalty would be inflicted if he did not start Sunday. He is willing, however, to accept a penalization of one-twentieth for his fault of Tuesday, as most of his competitors received similar handicaps.

Paihan Damages Machine.

While making his second start Paulhan had an accident apparently due to his attempt to launch his machine to the air before it had acquired sufficient speed. The biplane left the ground in response to the horizontal rudder, but it encountered a strong puff of wind on the beam, keeled over and was forced back to the earth. The planes on the left side crumpled like card board. Paulhan explained that the real cause of his mishap was a detour he made to avoid Delagrange, who was coming toward him. He said the wooden ribs could be substituted easily and that he expected to be able to make another start later in the day.

Shortly after this mishap Bleriot in His No. 23 went up and rounded the course four times. His time, however, was much slower than that made in his number 22, being by laps: 9 minutes 50 4-5 seconds; 19 minutes 49 4-5 seconds; 30 minutes and 17 seconds, and 4 minutes 39 1-5 seconds.

Wright Machines to be Tried.

Two Wright models each equiped with a tank carrying ninety litres of gasoline were ready to fly this afternoon in the endurance test. Count De Lambert, who flew in a Wright model last night said he could have continued for 200 kilometers (124.2 miles) had it not been that his tank became empty.

Acting on behalf of Clifford Harmon, of New York, Cortland F. Bishop is negotiating for the purchase, outright of the dirigible balloon Zodiac for immediate shipment to New York.

The Zodiac has been entered for the dirigible races to be held in connection with the Hudson-Fulton celebration. The owners asked $14,000 for the airship.

ZEPPELIN'S AIRSHIP ENVOYAGE.

Nuremburg, Aug. 27.—The airship Zeppelin III which left Friedrichshafen at 4:30 o'clock this morning for Berlin via Nuremburg, Leipsic and Bitterfeld, a total distance of about 450 miles, came down here at 4:45 this afternoon to make repairs to its machinery. One of the propellers and two cylinders of the forward motor have proved defective. The airship made a preliminary descent at Ostheim near Nuremburg a little before 12 o'clock to take on water and ballast.

It went up into the air at half past twelve.

QUIT BIG CAR PLANT.

Imported Men Say They Were Badly Treated.

Pittsburg, Aug. 27.—Imported men numbering 200 quit work today at the pressed steel car company, McKees Rocks and in a body marched to the bank of the Ohio river where they declared they would camp until the company had paid them for their work so they could retire to their homes. These new men said there were only 300 workmen left in the plant and that all of them would leave the mill by tomorrow morning. The strikers and their sympathizers are jubilant today.

BULLETIN.

Yosemite Cal., Aug. 27.—A forest-fire at the entrance to the Yosemite valley threatens destruction to the big tree grove, known as the Mercede grove, one of the world's famous collections of Sequoias.

The flames momentarily menaced the hotel at El Portal, a $100,00 frame structure which is filled with summer visitors. Sparks from a freight engine started the fire.

TOOL TALK.

Some Witty Remarks Overheard In a Machine Shop.

IT was midnight in the machine shop, and all was silent until the rasping voice of the file was heard to say, "I have rubbed up against lots of hard things in my life, but this harveyized steel job has completely worn me out."

"Well," said the lathe sympathetically, "I have done many a hard turn myself."

"Life is a great bore," supplemented the gimlet.

"A continual grind," put in the emery wheel roughly.

"With many a broken thread," added the steam pipe in hollow accents.

"Calm yourselves," advised the damaged flywheel; "there may be a revolution soon."

"Don't mind him," said the soldering fluid acidly. "Every one knows he is cracked."

And in the confusion that followed the gas escaped.—Judge.

Fishing Yarn.

During the salmon fishing season an Englishman was the guest of a highland laird, and one day he hooked a fine salmon. Being inexperienced as a fisherman, he became excited and in the struggle with the fish fell into the river. The keeper, seeing that he was no swimmer, hooked him with the gaff and started to drag him ashore. "What are ye aboot, Donal'?" cried the laird. "Get haud o' the rod and look tae the fush. Ma friend can bide a wee, but the fush winna!"—Independent.

His Scheme.

An actor in a London lodging house who had discovered his landlady's propensity for "swiping" numbered and listed his things. One night he roused the household by shouting down from his attic a demand for "No. 8."

"No. 8?" shouted the landlady back. "What No. 8?"

"I want cube No. 8 of my lump sugar," he replied.

Thenceforth the provisions in his cupboard were unmolested.—Argonaut.

His Retort.

"No," remarked a determined lady to an indignant cabman who had received his legal fare, "you cannot cheat me, my man. I haven't ridden in cabs for the last twenty-five years for nothing."

"Haven't you, mum?" replied the cabman bitterly, gathering up the reins. "Well, you've done your best!"—Tit-Bits.

MRS. BELMONT'S SUFFRAGETTE LAWN PARTY AT THE MARBLE PALACE, NEWPORT.

WOMEN AT SUFFRAGE MEETING ON "MARBLE HOUSE" LAWN

Newport, August 27.—Women suffragettes, men as well as women, crowded to Marble House, the beautiful residence of Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, in answer to a message recently issued by Mrs. Belmont for a conference to discuss women's rights.

It was on the spacious lawn of her splendid home in Bellevue avenue that the gathering was held, and the burden of responsibility in every respect rested upon her shoulders. It was her purpose to have presented by authorities on the subject information concerning the meaning and importance of woman suffrage to persons who had never seriously thought of it, but who, if converted to the cause, could give it enormous impetus by voice and purse. But while her appeal was directed to those there was another element in her venture which made it doubly hazardous, and even excited quiet derision in some quarters before her justification came today.

HICKSVILLE MAN RECALLS OLD CANAL EPOCH IN FORT WAYNE.

(A. C. Comparette in Hicksville News.)

The Wabash & Erie canal that opened up the tributaries of the great Wabash valley diverted its bountiful corn crops to the eastern markets from the southern markets, by way of the Wabash river, thence down the Ohio river to the Mississippi to New Orleans by flat boats drifting down with the current of these rivers. This was in '30 and '40. This was the only means of disposing of their surplus crops. The Wabash canal was completed from Fort Wayne to Lafayette, Indiana, in 1841. The first boat was run on this canal west as far as Huntington, Indiana, by the use of the feeder from the St. Joe river, it being dammed for the purpose, to furnish the water as far down as Peru, then the Wabash furnished, as the canal was built along side of the Wabash, also using some four miles of this river, what we called slack water, for canal purposes. The boat would pass out of the river into the main canal.

The first boat on this canal running from Fort Wayne to Huntington, was the Indiana with Captain Asa Fairfield. He had served much time on Lake Erie and Erie canal in the state of New York. He came to Fort Wayne in the early days of 1830, while this canal was being constructed. The boat started from what was known as Hinton bridge on the feeder canal, now Bloomingdale, north of St. Mary's river. The aqueduct across the St. Mary's river delayed much time to complete it and pass the water into the main canal; Hamilton and Williams had completed a large flouring mill to use this water for the power of a 25 foot overshot wheel. The water was let in the main canal and an embankment was thrown across the canal below the old fort grounds, and a waste way to pass the surplus water into the Maumee river. The mills were soon put in motion for grinding, the lock below town not yet being completed. This was in 1840.

In 1841 the canal was completed as far as Lafayette. My brother and I, with two cousins were sent to Vincennes, Indiana, to school by canal to Lafayette, thence by the Wabash river on steam boat to Vincennes. In 1842 we came home during vacation. The canal from Huntington to Lafayette was badly washed out and we were compelled to go by land till we reached Huntington; from there to Fort Wayne by boat. In 1843 this canal was completed from Lafayette to Toledo. At the opening of this great waterway from the Wabash valley to Lake Erie, General Cass, of Michigan, was the principal orator of the day. This was held at Fort Wayne and was well attended from east to west. The supply of boats soon became very numerous to move the surplus to the eastern market and clear up the vast amount of lumber that the entire length of this grand waterway was so well supplied with. Much valuable timber has all disappeared.

MRS. FREASE-GREEN AS SIEGLINDE.

Canton, Ohio, Aug. 27.—When President McKinley was at his home in Canton, Ohio, a few days before he was shot in Buffalo, he visited the house of Mr. W. S. Hawk, one of the proprietors of the Manhattan hotel, New York. There was music and Mrs. Rachel Frease-Green, the daughter of Jacob Frease, an old friend of Mr. McKinley, sang for the company, as she frequently had done at the informal gatherings that went to make up the social life of the president and Mrs. McKinley in their simple Ohio home. The president complimented her on her singing and urged her, as he had done before, to study for opera.

A short time later she sang at the president's funeral, and six years later at the funeral of Mrs. McKinley.

Mrs. Frease-Green took the president's advice and began to study seriously for an operatic career. She made her debut at Covert Garden last winter, singing Sieglinde in "Die Walkuere" and Eva in "Die Meistersinger," and being exceptionally well received by the public and praised by the critics.

Her relatives and friends have just been informed that she has received another important engagement, to sing in Berlin during the coming season. She is to have such roles as Elvira, Martha, Rosina, Violetta Gilda and the Queen in "Les Huguenots."

EX-GOV. FOLK WAS IN FORT WAYNE FOR HALF HOUR

Eminent Missourian Says West is Incensed at Tariff Action.

For half an hour Thursday evening, Hon. Joseph W. Folk, former governor of Missouri, Was in Fort Wayne on his way homeward from Angola where he had delivered an address at the commencement exercises of the Tri-State Normal college.

Mr. Folk was met at the Lake Shore station by C. A. Bachelor, who drove the distinguished Missourian to the Wabash depot, where he took a train for St. Louis. To newspaper men Mr. Folk talked briefly of political conditions. He declared that in his opinion the tariff would be the overtowering issue in the next presidential campaign, and said that his travels in the west since the adjournment of congress had convinced him that the general public is intensely dissatisfied with the manner in which the tariff question has been disposed of by the congress which has just adjourned.

"The people wanted relief," said Governor Folk, "and they are everywhere protesting against the injustice of taxing eighty millions of people for the benefit of a few multi-millionaires."

Why Hen Was Silent.

Hen Billings set in Stokes' store
Ha'f dozin' in his chair.
He'd set there fur an hour or more
A picture uv despair.
Hen hedn't said a single word
Sence he hed set him down—
In fact, he hedn't skurcely stirred
'Cept to increase his frown.

Jed Martin up an' spoke to Hen.
Hen on'y shook his head.
Stokes up an' asked him somethin' then,
But not a word he said.
Hen Billings wouldn't make a sound.
He kept his mouth shet tight,
Till by an' by it noised around
His "upper floor" warn't right.

That seemed to make ol' Henry mad.
He give ol' Stokes a frown.
Then grabbed a pencil an' a pad
An' scrawled this message down:
"Ding hang yew fur a poppinjay!
Don't think I've gone unstrung!
A wasp flew in my mouth today
An' stung me on the tongue!"

Aldrich has visited Beverly and naturally the speculation is whether he gave or got orders.

Theoretically and officially benzoate of soda won't hurt you. And your canned goods will always look nice, smell nice, taste nice. Sour stomach and a paralytic sensation are likely to be delusions.

Mexican Ambassador had his nose put quite out of joint because the Spanish minister was given precedence at the Toledo carnival and celebration. Let the Mexican nurse his nose. Anybody or anything Spanish has precedence in Toledo.

The wild and woolly west is merely a tradition. Idaho has a local option law and two counties have already gone "dry." And the other days of "tanglefoot," "tarantula juice," "fightin' rotgut," and other familiar brands of booze that were passed over rude barroom counters are not yet so long gone.

A good many great possibilities in aviation have been wrecked because the gasoline was exhausted. Those flyers probably carry all the fuel the machines will bear. Might help some to train the air jockeys down to bone weight like the turf jockeys and make up the balance of ballast in gasoline. This thing of having to stop flying for no other reason than that the benzine jugs go dry spoils the sport and puts a cloud on the future of human soaring. Motors and motor fuel are the problems of heavier than air aviation.

It is becoming apparent that conditions at the great pressed steel car plant in McKees Rocks, Pa., where a very turbulent strike has been in progress for now some six weeks, call for thorough investigation. The charges made by the strikers that strike-breakers were decoyed into the works by misrepresentation and kept there under duress are pretty well borne out by facts already ascertained. Federal inquiry into the situation with a view to getting at what seems to be a system of peonage is likely to be undertaken before long.

Sufficient appears to have been said when your amiable Uncle Joseph, of Danville, Illinoy, sassed back at Congressman Fowler as a mere fellow not in any wise worth paying attention to. And besides the Uncle Joe is going to make an issue in the house of the Fowler charges and let the house choose as between them. Rather magnanimous that. Of course the house will give a square deal and be real severe with its boss if he seems to deserve it. Cannon's announcement of a determination to have a trial before the house on the matter of his own integrity and usefulness is among the few good summer jokes.

"The illegal sale of liquor must and will be stopped." That was what Chief of Police Ankenbruck declared a week ago. That he meant it or at least was understood to mean it was proved by the sequel. Fort Wayne never experienced a dryer Sunday than the last one. The chief's order has not been rescinded. Indeed, it cannot be. The "illegal sale of liquor must be stopped" does not mean merely interruption for one Sunday or two. "Stopped"—abolished—put finally to an end. That was what the chief's order meant and if the lid does not stay down as long as he is in authority it will be because of interference from source of authority higher up.

The congress of state food and dairy commissioners at Denver finally endorsed the report of the Remsen commission of experts that sodium benzoate in preservative quantities is harmless to human beings. This endorsement came after a strenuous fight in which the Remsen commission and the government of the United States were verbally well pummeled. This endorsement has no official value and no compulsive force on anybody. The moral effect, however, constitutes a great victory for manufacturers of food products who resort to the use of benzoate of soda. Defenders of the use of chemical preservatives in food products will not be slow to turn the victory to account. That the congress endorsed the Remsen commission seems to have made the fight more bitter instead of ending it. Moreover, it is a severe blow to Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the chemical bureau of the department of agriculture, who has waged a stubborn warfare against legalizing the use of sodium benzoate as a food preservative.

The number of wifebeaters figuring recently in police chronicles has been uncommonly large. This may be accounted for on atmospheric grounds with the customary allowance for the bedevilments of whisky. At all events there are too many such cases in the police court. These offenses in such increasing numbers make it pertinent once more to urge the enactment of a law in this state by which provision may be made specifically for wife beaters, drunkards who contribute nothing to those dependant on them and men who desert their families. A workhouse in which such offenders may be made to perform a term of useful labor whereof the proceeds, less the cost of maintaining the institution, shall be devoted to the support of their families would prove an adequate corrective. A penal institution of the sort could be made practically self-sustaining and at the same time wife-maulers, slothful inebriates and men who repudiate their responsibilities to wives and children can be punished in a fashion that will inure to the good of their families, their friends and society in general.

TEST THE HOWE READERS.

Secretary of State Printing Board Applies Muriatic Acid.

Indianapolis, Aug. 27.—A. E. Butler, secretary of the state printing board, has applied the muriatic acid test to the Howe readers, which are furnished the state by the Scribner company from the Conkey press, at Hammond, and will report to the state board of school book commissioners that the quality of paper used is equal to that in the volumes submitted to the state board when it was considering bids for readers. By applying muriatic acid to the leaves of the books, all wood particles in the texture are burned, and the expert is able to grade the quality of the paper from the resulting yellow tinge.

Mr. Butler made the test by applying the acid to the paper in the sample books and in those sent out for use in the schools, and was unable to detect any difference. The test for relative strength will be made later on a specially constructed machine.

The chemical change which accompanies the muriatic test is the same as that which takes place in a newspaper when subjected to the rays of the sun, the resultant shade of yellow being deep or slight in proportion to the amount of wood pulp in the paper.

KOKOMO HOSPITAL BEGGING.

Because of Many Objections Dr. F. D. Miller Takes Back Offer.

Kokomo, Ind., Aug. 27.—Declaring that he had no intention of profiting financially by the transaction, Dr. F. D. Miller has withdrawn the proposition made to the city for the sale of his palatial home, known as the Seiberling mansion, to the city for a hospital at $25,000. The doctor says:

"I have heard that my house is insanitary; that its walls are lodging places for germs, and I have heard it darkly hinted that my plumbing is antiquated. Before the reputation of my house is shattered I wish to end the discussion."

Since first suggested the plan has been opposed by taxpayers and property owners who did not want a hospital near their own residences. Dr. Miller offers a large donation for a hospital for Kokomo to be erected by private benevolence.

The city council, which was favorable to the purchase of the Miller home, is in a mood now to repeal the hospital ordinance and the park extension ordinance as well.

To the Public Information

My beautiful Lake Everett Thousand Acre Park is not for sale. Under no possible conditions will it be for sale.

HENRY M. WILLIAMS.

INVITATION

Everybody is invited to visit the Lake Everett Park—Tonawanda Park—the new name. Big Twi-Twee and Little Twi-Twee, the names of the two lakes connected. This is the park visiting season, and the water views between the trees ("no landscape is perfect without water") are delightfully charming, especially so from the north side flats, where are the tall elms, 100 feet high, with vines climbing to the extreme tops of the trees.

1909 INSTITUTE A THING OF PAST

upon "Suffragettes and Cigarettes" under which topic he spoke especially of the education of girls, of the making of womanly girls in home as well as school. Girls can and should receive appreciative attention, their dispositions should be trained as it is their stock in trade and their relation to the home is of supreme importance. Mr. Winship paid a noble tribute to Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, the new ten-thousand dollar superintendent of the Chicago schools, to Jane Addams, of Hull House, fame, to Julia Richa and Jane Day, of New York City. This lecture was especially enlivened by incidents and illustrations. The lecture closed with a tribute to Julia Ward Howe after which the audience rose and sang, "The Bible Hymn of the Republic."

A Story of the Heavens.

Dr. Phillips closed his work at the institute by giving a lecture on astronomy, which he called "The Story of the Heavens." He began with the sun, its great distance from the earth and its enormous size, and described the interesting facts now known about the sun. Its light and heat were then dwelt upon and he said that the probable cause of the sun's heat was its own contraction in bulk or shrinkage. He took his hearers with him to the other worlds of planets and the moon. Explained interestingly shooting stars and comets and called attention to Halley's comet which will return to us next winter and spring after an absence of about seventy-five years, and will be a beautiful and striking object. Shooting stars, he said, were often the fragments of comets left behind by them in their flight through space. He described the stars as great glowing suns, balls of fire at enormous distances, possibly with families of comets circling about them mut made up of the substances as our sun and the earth itself.

RECEIVES GRAVE INJURIES.

Singer, Pittsburg Financier, May Die of Auto Crash Hurt.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 27.—William H. Singer, who was head of Singer, Nimick & Co., until its absorption by the trust, and who now is a director in the Carnegie Steel company and the Crucible Steel company, was seriously and perhaps fatally injured Wednesday night in an automobile accident at his summer home near Providence, R. I. Relatives of the injured millionaire have hurried east to his bedside.

One year ago the wealth of Mr. Singer was estimated at $30,000,000. He was approaching the age of three score and ten, and apparently he got a sudden premonition that he might meet with a fatal accident or die suddenly, thereby embarrassing his estate, perhaps, for his heirs. He decided to provide against this contingency by disposing of the major part of his wealth to his children, four in number. Accordingly he sent out invitations for the strangest family dinner party ever given in Pittsburg.

One of the children came from Norway to take part in the dinner. The one favor found by the plate of each of the four children was a paper giving absolute transfer of $4,000,000. Mr. Singer all his life has been one of the close friends and business associates of Andrew Carnegie.

IN THE CITY'S CHURCHES

IMPROVEMENTS EXTENSIVE.

Remodeling of Brothers' House and Cathedral Boy's School.

Besides the extensive remodeling and renovation of the Library Hall subsequent to its use as the Fort Wayne Central Catholic High school considerable work of a similar character is in progress at the Boys' parochinal school, corner E. Jefferson and Clinton streets and the Brothers' residence next door. The school has been thoroughly improved throughout. New floors have been laid, new blackboards supplied; walls and ceilings frescoed and woodwork painted. Minor changes have also been made and the school rooms are well lighted, cheerful and inviting. The majority of the desks have been placed in position and besides the regular school rooms, one room will serve as a music room, where the boys will be trained for the choir by Rev. Simon M. Yenn, diocesan chancellor and musical director. Boys up to the eighth grade will attend this school formerly taught in by the Brothers of the Holy Cross, and four sisters of Providence residing at St. Augustine's will have the children under their tutorage.

At the Brothers' house frescoeing and painting have added to the improvements made. A cement floor has been laid in the cellar and a hot air heating system installed. The building has also been wired and after the workmen are through, the house will be equipped with necessary furnishings and supplies. The Brothers will arrive shortly before the opening of the Central High School, September 7.

Y. W. C. A. CONFERENCE.

Mrs. Frank Fox Conducting Mission Study Classes at Lake Geneva.

The Y. W. C. A. Central City conference came to a successful close today at Lake Geneva, Wis. and the band of local delegates and friends attending are expected to return this evening or on Saturday. Mrs. Frank M. Fox wife of the local pastor of the Third Presbyterian church was very successful in the conduct of mission study classes during the conference instructing board members and secretaries of city associations.

A convention of the Y. W. C. A. college department opens with the close of the Central City conference and Mrs. Fox will remain, instructing student classes until September 4.

COMING FOR METHODIST DAY.

Six District Superintendents Will be at Robison Park.

The superintendents of the six districts of the North Indiana conference have all accepted invitations to attend the annual reunion of Allen county Methodists at Robison park next Thursday, September 2. The list includes Rev. S. Light, of Elkhart; Rev. C. C. Cissel, of Logansport; Rev. B. S. Hollopeter, of Wabash; Rev. L. J. Naftzger, of Muncie; Rev. T. M. Guild, of Richmond, and Rev. C. U. Wade, of Fort Wayne.

Rev. C. A. Rowand, of Marion, will deliver an address in the morning, and the North Indiana Conference quartet will sing during the day, giving also an evening concert at the First M. E. church, to which admission will be free.

Mothers

You who do not watch the eyes of your children are guilty of negligence.

Neglected eye-sight in children may lead to partial or total blindness in later life.

Children have not means to judge whether their sight is good or bad; neither have you.

Heed This Warning

Eye trouble in children nine cases out of ten can be permanently cured if taken in time.

Our experience has been the longest—the Meigs method is the safest.

No charge for examination. If glasses are necessary we make special arrangements for re-examinations, and the changes necessary to properly care for their eyes.

IN THE THEATERS

One of the best western plays seen on the stage in the past few seasons is "The Cowboy and the Thief," the attraction at the Majestic tonight and Saturday, matinee and night. The play, although a melodrama, is not the type of play that is classed as "blood and thunder," but a well drawn, clear-cut story of the west. One that deals with real men and real women and events that are plausible and consistent and not over-drawn and exaggerated.

THE MAJESTIC AIRDOME.

Only one more vaudeville bill will be seen at the Majestic airdome after the present week, as the end of next week will mark the closing of the open air theater for the present season. The patronage this summer has been good and the quality of the vaudeville excellent. Hardly a week has gone by without some striking feature on the bill, and the acts as a whole have been representative of the best in modern variety.

THE RAYS IN "KING CASEY."

Bright Musical Comedy Comes to the Majestic Soon.

"King Casey" and his entire retinue will hold court at the Majestic theater on the evening of Wednesday, Sept. 1. Johnny Ray, the janitor, has usurped the throne of his brother, king of the island of Lalla Pa Zaza. He has appropriated the crown and throne, throne room and palace, the entire court from nobles to fool, and is now touring the country holding boisterous and gorgeous revel in every city along the route. Johnny Ray is a merry old king and there is little that might tend to the success of a genuine or make-believe court carousal, tinged with political intrigue, that does not enter into the affairs of "King Casey." In the king's suite are some forty-five nobles and ladies adept in the ways of royalty and well suited to assist in the wild orgies of the court.

At the Lyric.

Amateur night at the Lyric has become something of an institution and amateurs and their friends and the public as well look forward to it. Tonight a classy bunch will be given the boards and real entertainment is promised by Manager Hartman. In addition there will be at each performance the three regular comedy acts and an uncommonly attractive lot of pictures, together with an illustrated song.

Check for $125 Held Not Equal to $50 Real Money.

Columbus, Ind., Aug. 27.—An affidavit has been filed in Justice Kinney's court here against Ed Williams of Edinburg, charging him with forgery. Williams is alleged to have negotiated the purchase of a horse for Ivory Cutsinger from Martin J. Dinn, in which he represented to Cutsinger that the horse could be bought for $50.

Cutsinger gave him the money and he went to Dinn and instead of giving him the money gave him a check for $125 with Cutsinger's name on it, which the latter alleges is a forgery.

SWARTOUT CALLS ON HIS WIFE WITH A KICK

Sore Because She Didn't Get His Breakfast and Makes Trouble.

Fred Swartout, at one time a guest of the state of Michigan in a big stone building maintained at Jackson for the care and custody of citizens who fracture the laws, got sore early yesterday morning because his wife did not stay home from her good job in the Eagle laundry and get his breakfast, and he went up there at noon to kick. When she came home from work he started trouble and landed in the police station with a charge of assault and battery against him.

Fred said he had never been arrested before, but his wife got peeved and said he had been in the penitentiary. He snatched a skillet from his wife's hand last night, struck her with it and banged his stepson two or three times over the head and when the evidence was all in it showed that the pair had been divorced from former marriages and had been man and wife since March, 1908. The judge took the matter under advisement until tomorrow.

All of the parties formerly lived at Coldwater, Mich., and have been here only a short time. He was employed at the Lake Shore round house for a time. The fight caused a lot of excitement last night in the vicinity of 645 West Fifth street, where the family resides.

Omitted a Word.

In drawing the affidavit against Otto Wiegand, the Main street saloonkeeper, who went out on the street to lick a minor customer and who is still in business, Prosecutor Thomas, in citing the fact that beer was sold to this customer, omitted the word "cents" in naming the price. This was fatal and the affidavit was dismissed when it was called in the city court this morning.

The Other Cases.

Thomas Golden was fined $1 and costs and John Martin $5 and costs for drunkenness. William Wessenberger was too drunk to try and his case went over until tomorrow.

Victorio Salvatore, who was charged with obtaining money by pretending he was soliciting funds for Frank Casso, was ordered to leave the city.

Frank Mathews, charged with stealing a couple of pieces of pipe from Jacob J. Lantz, secured a continuance until Tuesday of next week.

A Roumanian who gave the name of Dellajohn and who was sent over for a long term for beating his wife, secured a new trial and was fined $10 and costs and released from jail when this was paid. The wife asked that he be given his freedom.

The Field museum in Chicago now has what is said to be the largest meteorite ever found in the west. It weighs about two tons, and was found at Tonopah, Nev.

HUSBAND IS RELEASED.

Slays Man Who Stole Wife; Her Relatives Go on Bond.

Gallatin, Mo., Aug. 27.—Otis Claycomb was released today on $5,000 bail furnished by his wife's relatives after he had testified that he slew John Ward, his employer, a wealthy widower, who, it developed from testimony, had "stolen" Claycomb's wife and forged her name to a letter to her daughter, aged 18, confessing her relations with Ward and adding that as she had done wrong she never would return to her family.

Mrs. Claycomb last was heard of at Excelsior Springs, Mo., a few weeks ago. When she abandoned Claycomb, he testified, she left him with their six children after he had contracted many debts on Ward's false promises to aid him.

"He must have drugged my wife to get her away from me," Claycomb testified, "for she was so fond of her children she wouldn't let anybody else wait on them when they were sick. When I returned home last Monday night and saw Ward there I fired, killing him."

How to Save Half On Milk

You are paying your milkman twice what you'd pay for Van Camp's. You even pay more by the quart. Then think of the waste—the milk that sours—the milk you use up to save. For you rarely get just milk enough.

You are paying more for impure milk than you would pay for pure.

That half-milk you use in your cooking costs more than rich Holstein milk.

You can have a cow in your kitchen for less than you pay toward the keep of your milkman's cow.

If Van Camp's cost twice as much as raw milk it would still be essential. There is nothing more vital than getting pure milk.

But when Van Camp's costs half as much, for what possible reason can one cling to raw milk?

Let us discuss the facts.

Surprisingly Rich

You'll be surprised at the richness and flavor which Van Camp's gives to a milk dish.

You'll wonder what we have added to make it so good.

But we add nothing at all.

The difference is this: You were cooking before with half-milk. For milkman's milk separates, before and after you get it.

The butter fat rises and the solids fall. So you never get the whole, rich milk.

In Van Camp's you do. You'll never again be content with half-milk when you once cook with Van Camp's.

Not Altered

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated. Nothing whatever is added. Nothing is subtracted, save water.

It's not a peculiar milk.

It is taken fresh from the cow and evaporated, close to our numerous dairies.

It is sterilized after the can is sealed. So it comes to you as fresh as it leaves us.

The slight almond flavor—apparent only when one drinks the milk cold—is due to sterilization.

For cooking or coffee, Van Camp's tastes exactly the same as raw milk or cream, save for additional richness.

It's Economical

Van Camp's is as thick as thick cream—so thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it doesn't cost half what you pay your milkman for cream.

Add two parts water and you have rich milk. The cost of such milk, when you buy Van Camp's by the case, is about six cents per quart.

Then you have no waste—no milk left over. For Van Camp's means a cow in your kitchen.

One often spends for Van Camp's Milk about half what she paid the milkman.

Think of buying milk from hand to mouth—buying a half-milk laden with germs—and paying more than one pays for Van Camp's.

Free From Germs

Van Camp's is perfectly sterile.

We milk no tubercular cows. We employ no sickly milkmen.

Our dairies are sanitary. Our creameries, where the milk is evaporated, are built without wood. We make a business of cleanliness.

We employ every means known to science to guard our milk from infection.

Then the milk is pasteurized.

Every drop of raw milk contains a myriad of germs. And those germs are humanity's most terrible foes.

Van Camp's contains none at all. It is safe.

A Warning

Van Camp's is not like a condensed milk, which is half sugar. Ours is nothing but milk.

Analysis of Van Camp's shows about 8 per cent of butter fat. That is because we use very rich milk and evaporate two-thirds of the water.

But one may take out much less of the water and still have "evaporated" milk.

So there is need to be careful. Don't think that all milks are alike. Van Camp's costs no more than many brands which cannot begin to compare with it.

You will get the utmost in milk if you insist on Van Camp's.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10-cent cans, at your grocer's. It is put up at our dairies, in five states, where we milk 20,000 Holstein cows.

Bauers—Olmsted.

The marriage of Mr. W. H. Bauers and Mrs. Lillian Olmsted was quietly consummated at the residence of Dr. Henry T. Sell Thursday afternoon. The couple left the same afternoon for their future home in Kansas City, Mo. The romance between the two originated in the after-excitement of the Aveline hotel fire a year ago, Mr. Bauers having been a guest there at that time. His escape from the burning building was one of the many exciting features of the fire.

Frame-Maxwell.

A quiet wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald H. Maxwell, 2527 South Harrison street, when Miss Zella M. Maxwell was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur L. Frame. Rev. J. K. Cecil, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, performed the ceremony.

HOUSEKEEPING HINTS.

By taking a small piece of tape and tacking it on the band of a hat, as you would a hanger on a skirt, the hat can easily be hung up on a hook without danger of being pushed off by any one brushing against it.

Every housekeeper knows how difficult it is to clean under cabinets and dressers when you have waxed floors and do not want to move the furniture and leave marks from the rollers. By taking out the bottom drawers one may clean the floors perfectly.

People who have wire clothes lines which have become rusted may cover them with newspapers temporarily when hanging clothes. As soon as opportunity is afforded apply two coats of gray paint.

If the metal bars used for holding towels and wash cloths have become rusted give them several coats of paint and one of enamel, and you will have no further trouble from rust.

To dry clean a hairbrush take one-half cup each of flour and salt, mix, then rub through the bristle two or three times. Shake this mixture all out and the brush will be as clean as when new. This does not soften the bristles.

Cookies and little cakes placed in an earthen jar with a few pieces of cut oranges or lemon will be found to be delicately flavored when eaten.

A child's broom, purchased for a small amount at any department store, is an excellent article for cleaning behind the radiators.

Powdered arrowroot is preferable to cornstarch for thickening fruit juices, for it keeps the juice transparent and prevents lumping.

For cleaning downstairs, a stiff, plain brush is better than a whisk broom.

ABOUT MAKING RAW STARCH.

To make raw starch, use two tablespoonfuls of starch to a teacupful of cold water. The portion to be starched must be dry.

Dip into the starch, squeeze and rub between the hands to work the starch thoroughly into the frabric.

Being cold, it does not enter as quickly as the hot starch.

Thus starched, a garment must be rolled and laid away for two hours. Then open it and lay on the board, rub to remove any particles of dry starch, for these tiny atoms are what makes the irons stick and creates what are known as "blacks," a word that describes them perfectly. Lay a dry cloth between the fabric and the iron at first. When the piece is dry the cloth may be removed and the article ironed until dry.

A polish should be given with the iron that comes for such a purpose. Some women use the polishing iron on collars and cuffs only as far as the row of stitching, leaving the extreme edge unpolished, claiming that this gives the new effect.

A little borax added to dry starch will give it a little gloss.

Boiled Sword Fish.

Boil the fish in boiling water containing a little salt, bay leaf, two tablespoonfuls vinegar and sprig of parsley. Bring quickly to the boil, and keep just below boiling point until ready. Serve with egg sauce, which is made by adding two finely chopped hard boiled eggs to some white sauce.

String Beans.

Remove all strings from the beans. Cut in inch pieces. Wash, and cook in boiling water for fifteen minutes. Add salt and cook till tender. Drain, add butter, salt and pepper. A piece of salt pork cooked with the beans is considered by many an improvement.

Stylish Frock for a School Girl.

(By Mrs. Jane Ford.)

4 SIZES 6 TO 12 YEARS

When planning the autumn wardrobe for school girls, frocks of linen, pongee and light weight woolens, such as challis, cashmere and French serge should be given a prominent place. A design that will be pretty, developed in any of these materials, is shown in the illustration, the pattern for which may be bought in four sizes and will fit girls from six to twelve years of age.

To copy the model for a girl eight years old three yards of material, thirty-six inches wide, or two and five-eighths yards forty-four inches in width will be needed.

The design of this dress should prove especially attractive for every day wear, as it provides for a separate guimpe, which can be made from tub material, in white or some becoming light shade that contrasts prettily with the goods. As guimpes, plaids, muslin, all-over tucking, or tucking and lace insertion combined will be effective with any of the fabrics mentioned for the body of the garment. To make such a guimpe one and one-half yards, twenty-seven inches wide, or one and one-quarter yards, thirty-six inches in width, will be required.

Much may be said in favor of the advantages a frock with a front closing has over one that fastens at the back, and the former is a feature of this model.

Such a closing makes it possible for the school girl to put on her dress in the morning and adjust it without aid from others, which, of course, is a saving of time. The fastening may be effected either with buttons and buttonholes or with the ball and socket closing. When the latter method is selected these fastenings can be had riveted to heavy tapes that are sold by the yard.

Arranged in this way they are more easily adjusted than when sewed on separately, for it is only necessary to baste the tapes in position and then stitch them on either side.

HOW TO WASH BLANKETS.

To wash blankets one should commence operations the day before by cutting one or two pieces of soap, as considered necessary, and dissolving into a jelly with hot water. Next day it will be ready for use, and sufficient should be added to the tub of warm water to make a good suds. Borax may be added if the water is hard. The blankets should remain in the bath for half an hour or more, the lid of the tub closed to keep the water warm. Incidentally the warm water should not be allowed to get cold if woollen goods of any kind are soaking.

After the soaking souse up and down in the water, rubbing any soils with the hands. Do not use a board, because rubbing on a board knots together the little hairs that stand out in woollens, and this causes shrinkage. Rubbing soap directly on woollens has the same disastrous effect; the soap "mats" the hairs.

When clean the blankets should be wrung and placed in a second bath of soapy water and squeezed thoroughly. Rinse in warm water, adding borax, and hang to dry in the sun and air. Then the blankets should be soft and white when dry. They should be placed on chairs and around the house until bone dry. Blankets should hang doubled over the line to dry. Some women run a strip of white goods the length of the blanket between it and the clothes pins. This prevents marks from the latter showing, but it is by no means necessary, as a good blowing will soon cause them to disappear. Before the blankets are dry they should be taken from the line and rehung by the selvedges at the ends, and by one selvedge between these points. When dry, they can be changed, folded, etc., as seems to be practicable, facing the sun.

WERE STUDENTS AT M. E. COLLEGE YEARS AGO

Alumni of Old Fort Wayne Institution in Reunion at Winona Lake.

Former students at the old Fort Wayne M. E. college held their fourth general reunion at Winona lake on Thursday, and the occasion brought together something like eighty members of the alumni of the old institution. The gathering was held at the Westminster hotel and on the park grounds, and there was a delightful gathering of schoolday friends of the long ago.

In the business sessions Mrs. Florence Cartwright, of Payne, O., was re-elected president of the association with S. A. Guy, of Etna Green, as secretary-treasurer. It was decided to hold the reunion next year at Winona on Thursday of Bible Conference week, and George McCarter and Mrs. Emma Teegarden, of Warsaw, were named as a committee on arrangements.

Letter from Old President.

One of the features of the day was the reading of a letter from Dr. W. F. Yocum, so long president of the Fort Wayne college. In it Dr. Yocum explained that he had long ago given up college work, and was devoting himself to the culture of oranges at his country estate in Florida. The alumni association declared its purpose of making an especial effort to secure the presence of Dr. Yocum at the reunion next year.

In the course of the day reminiscent talks were given by J. B. Harper, Judge O. N. Heaton and Dr. Harriet Stemen Macbeth, of Fort Wayne; Rev. A. T. Briggs, of Hammond; Rev. T. M. Hall, of Upland, S. B. Sweet, of Indianapolis, and John W. Hayden, of Fort Wayne.

Former Students There.

Former students of the old Fort Wayne institution who were present at the reunion were:

Autha Hatch, F. L. Jones, O. N. Heaton, Flora Miller, Fort Wayne; S. B. Sweet, Indianapolis; Emma and Charles Teegarden, Marion; Clara Gordon Wagoner, Iola, Kan.; A. T. Briggs, Hammond; Mrs. Harriet Stemen Macbeth, Fort Wayne; Herman and William Wilkie, Elwood; Mrs. Amanda Iba Shaw, Fort Wayne; J. B. Harper, wife and daughter, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Jessie Crawford Butler, Ella Crawford, Emma Crawford, Roland Butler, Urbana; J. W. Edwards, Monroeville; Josie Mete Waimer and daughter, Bluffton; Mrs. O. A. Davis, Rochester; Mrs. Dora Terry Davis, Rochester; Mrs. Phoebe Walker Elder, Logansport; W. Ashcraft, Fostoria; W. F. Carver and wife, Albion; Miss Mattie Winesburg, North Manchester; Rev. J. A. Beatly and Mrs. Ina Church Beatly, Elkhart; J. P. Bonnell, Fort Wayne; Dr. Jacob Welch, Spencerville, O.; Mrs. Mildred Miller Welch and daughter, and Maxie Mossman Daugherty, Lagro; Mrs. Conrick Guy, Etna Green, Ward Mayer, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Lizzie Work Mayer, Fort Wayne; J. E. Garman, Auburn; J. C. Martin, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Edith Snyder McDonald, Warsaw; Martha Williard Ridenour and Mary Williard; Fort Wayne; Chester Church, Fort Wayne; Allie McNeahon Krider, Fort Wayne; Melissa McConahy Moore, Fort Wayne; W. E. Murray, Van Buren; Ed Gaskill and wife and P. D. West and wife, Auburn; T. M. Hill, J. C. Woodruff, Mrs. Clara Webster Boshler, Upland; Mrs. Ora Parks Bolton, Chicago; Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Yocum, Mentone; Prof. A. Joost and wife, Fort Wayne; Rev. E. A. Bunner, Huntertown; Geo. W. McKee, Fort Wayne; Jno. Neufer, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Nettie English Hubler, Hoagland; Asbury King, Findlay, O.; Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Mason, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Flo McLachlon Cartwright, Payne, O., and Jno. W. Hayden, Fort Wayne.

There will be a meeting of the "Allen County Sunday School Association," held at the home of the secretary, Mrs. Nettie Hubler, on Thursday, September 2, 1909, at 2 o'clock p. m. This is the first meeting of the year, and a very important one. We hope the members will make a special effort to attend.

Jack Tooley, Mourned Thirty Years, Back in Rushville.

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 27.—Like a spectre from the grave Jack Tooley, who formerly lived at Milroy and has been mourned as dead for over thirty years, came into the city yesterday. He was a member of the Sixteenth regiment in the civil war and at the close of the service went west. About thirty years ago his brother living south of here, received word of his death in Missouri.

He saved his money and purchased mining stock, which gives him a large income. He met his brother here last evening.

Pennsy Engineers Have Perfect Record in 156,000 Tests.

Over 156,000 efficiency tests were made by the Pennsylvania railroad in the first six months of this year, and practically a perfect record was made by the employes. These figures are shown in a report issued today by the railroad. The average number of tests made each day was 862, and of the total for the six months, 99.6 per cent. were perfect. In the .4 per cent. of failures are included the cases when enginemen passed signals by a few feet before stopping their trains, and similar cases, which, though technical violations, were not such as would make possible an accident to a train.

Efficiency, or surprise tests, are conducted by officials of the Pennsylvania railroad, who, at unusual times and places, set signals at caution or danger, extinguish signal lights, display fusees, or place torpedoes on the track, with a view to keeping enginemen constantly on the alert for any and all signals. In conducting surprise tests the officials sometimes extinguish signal lamps, and while enginemen may stop at the signal, failure to report the dark lamp at the next station lays them liable to suspension. Failure to observe any of the rules regarding the operation of trains is disciplined.

The tests made in the first six months of this year were divided into four classes, in which the following records were made by the men: Block signal rules, 24,292 tests, of which 99.6 per cent. showed perfect observance on the part of employes; rules governing flagmen, and the use of fusees, torpedoes and other signals, 23,042 tests, with 99.5 per cent. perfect; trains ahead of schedule time, 53,503 tests, with 99.7 per cent. perfect; signalmen relieving each other, 99.9 per cent. perfect out of 56,112 tests.

The New York division—the line between New York and Philadelphia—showed a perfect record in all signal tests, as did the Cresson and the Central divisions. On the Sunbury and Shamokin divisions a total of 8,732 signal rule tests were made and in only nine cases was the observance imperfect. Nine of the 26 divisions reported perfect observance of all block signal rules; five were perfect in other signals, twenty-one in trains running ahead of schedule time, and ten in singnalmen relieving each other.

IDLE ENGINES CALLED OUT.

Business on the Wabash Shows Decided Improvement.

As evidence of the improved conditions of freight traffic on the Wabash line, a representative of that road this morning cited to the fact that two high class freight trains, one loaded with live stock and the other with dressed meats, were passing through the city at that moment. He also said that freight engines Nos. 803, 835 and 843, which were repaired at the Fort Wayne shops and put in "white lead" to await orders, were taken out this morning and sent to the Moberly division to go into service. Engines 11, 1204 and 2032 were turned over to the transportation department today, after receiving general repairs.

DRAWN INTO MACHINE.

George Gable Has Narrow Escape at Pennsy Shops.

While operating one of the large boring mills at the Pennsylvania machine shop this morning, George Gable was forcibly drawn against the machinery and sustained painful bruises and sprains to his left leg. The leg of his overalls caught upon a nut of the machine and had not the cloth given way, Mr. Gable might have been more severely injured. He was taken to his home, where he will probably be confined three or four days.

LIKE TRACTION LINES BEST.

Yesterday's travel into Fort Wayne on account of Farmers' Day at Robison park emphasized the fact that for short rides the interurban is preferred by the people from rural districts over the steam roads. Hundreds of farmers came to the city and went to the park to attend the exercises of Farmers' Day and the interurbans brought in fully three-fourths of them. This probably was due in a measure to the steam roads themselves, they making no special bid for the business in the way of extra trains or rates.

SHOPMEN ATTEND FUNERAL.

Nearly every employe at the Pennsylvania boiler shop and a number of employes from other departments followed the hearse bearing the remains of E. C. Camperman from his late residence on Lafayette street to the Wabash depot at 8:30 o'clock last evening, where they were placed on the 9:10 o'clock train and taken to Lafayette, the former home of the deceased. It was a fitting tribute to the memory of a most worthy young man, who was held in high esteem by his shopmates.

FOOT BADLY BRUISED.

Last night Charles Roembke, of the Bass foundry, had one of his feet badly bruised when a car wheel fell on the member. The tendons of the foot were sprained also, but the bones were not fractured so fas as known.

PREPARING FOR BIG TRAFFIC.

Mr. Otis, of the Erie, was in the city today inspecting a lot of car casting at the Bass foundry. Mr. Otis says the car repair shops at Huntington were never more busy than at present. They are chiefly engaged in repairing grain cars, which will be in great demand in a few days. A similar condition exists at the car shops of the lines running into Fort Wayne, all having all the business they can handle.

PLANS SURPRISE ON BOYS.

The fact that Machinist William F. Koenig, of the Wabash, has obtained transportation for himself and wife to Buffalo and the Falls next week is taken as evidence that a wedding will take place soon and that Mr. Koenig will figure prominently in it. In fact it is learned that he is to be married next Monday to Miss Schneider, of Wall street, the daughter of the well known cigar manufacturer. Mr. Koenig has endeavored to keep the matter secret, but the "boys" at the shops are "on" and will see that he is not forgotten.

TWO SLIGHT INJURIES.

T. R. Mueller, a blacksmith at the Pennsylvania shops, was jolted by the tongs at the steam hammer yesterday and one of his thumbs was dislocated and otherwise injured and he will be unable to work for awhile. C. B. Waterson, also of the smith shop, had one of his feet bruised and sprained by a piece of iron falling on the member yesterday. He will be disabled a few days.

SHOPMAN DANGEROUSLY ILL.

The condition of Bernard O'Leary, the apprentice in the Pennsylvania shop, is very critical. It was believed for awhile yesterday afternoon that he could not survive the day, but he rallied during the night. There is very little prospect, however, of his recovery. The young man is a son of Section Foreman James O'Leary, of the Pennsylvania.

ON TRIP TO THE "SOO."

Chief Clerk W. L. Wilt, of the Pennsylvania motive power offices, accompanied by Mrs. Wilt and Miss Nellie, left at noon today for a trip up the "Soo," going via Toledo and the steamer "Sylvania." They will be gone about ten days and anticipate a lot of pleasure out of the trip.

PROMOTIONS AT EXPRESS OFFICE

Agent George Becker, of the Adams Express company, will make some changes in his force next Monday. Henry Shaley, money clerk at the depot, will go on the road; Otto Reese becomes day depot agent and Earl Henschen becomes night money clerk at the depot. The latter was formerly a driver.

BOILERMAKERS ENTERTAIN.

The relief union of the Boilermakers and Boilermakers' Helpers union gave a very successful ice cream social at Swinney park last evening, serving refreshments to about 3,000 people. The affair was for the purpose of replenishing the funds of the relief department and it was satisfactory in its results.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Machinist George Powers, of the Wabash shops, is sick and off duty.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Moran are the guests of friends in Chicago. He is a Pennsylvania boilermaker.

Walter Koos, a packer at the Electric works, has gone to Bluffton to spend a few days with relatives.

D. McNamara, traveling passenger agent of the Alton, was in the city today on business for his company.

Pennsylvania Boilermaker A. L. Freiberger, of the Pennsylvania, has gone to Chicago for a visit with friends.

J. H. Cody, F. X. Miller, F. J. Beyerlein, Michael Carey and J. C. Vachon, Pennsylvania shopmen, are sick and off duty.

Tomorrow Machinist and Mrs. William Lang, the former of the Wabash shops, will go to Peru to visit relatives over Sunday.

Pennsylvania Engineer Otto Rost and his family have gone to Michigan on a visit with relatives, expecting to be gone about a week.

Tomorrow Machinist W. H. Noble, of the Pennsylvania, will accompany his wife on a pleasure trip to Chicago, to be gone three or four days.

T. F. Boehm, formerly connected with the Emporium, has taken employment as a packer at the shipping department of the Electric works.

Chris Martin, a packer at the Electric works, has returned from Clear lake, where he spent a week. Mrs. Martin will remain another week.

George Kloepper and C. Haslup, pipefitters at the Wabash shops, left this afternoon for Chicago, where they will spend a week with friends.

Blacksmith Charles Koenig, of the Wabash, is attending a conference of other blacksmiths concerning some matters of interest to the craft.

Mrs. G. J. Nichols, whose husband is a Pennsylvania blacksmith, was summoned to Alliance this morning by news of the serious illness of a relative.

Ed Tegtmeyer, of the Pennsylvania shops, and his daughter will go to Falls City, Neb., tomorrow to spend two weeks with his two married daughters, who reside in that place.

Tonight Assistant Car Inspector Foreman John Koehl, of the Pennsylvania, and his two sons will leave for Pittsburg, where they will spend a week with relatives and friends.

Joseph Lamboley, traffic manager of the Fort Wayne Electric works, is taking a few days' leave of absence to look after the affairs on his farm, west of the city. He may move out there soon.

The Bass company delivered to S. F. Bowser & company today, a large tank which is destined to become a part of an oil storage plant to be installed for a patron of the Bowser company.

William R. Saffon, of the Pennsylvania shops, had one of his fingers punctured by a piece of steel yesterday, making a most painful wound which has put him out of commission for a few days.

Thomas Wilkenson, who resigned a position as signal repairman with the Pennsylvania several days ago, has taken a position as brakeman with the C. H. & D., and has been assigned to a local freight run between this city and Findlay.

Machinist George Murphy and Tool Room Tender G. F. Branstrator resigned their positions in the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning. Murphy, who worked there only a few days, will return to his place in the Lima Locomotive works.

Michael Welch, the Wabash freight conductor, who was fined by a justice of the peace at Huntington for alleged illegal holding of a crossing some weeks ago, has appealed the case to the circuit court. He says he is not guilty.

Passenger Conductor Ed Nulf, of the Pennsylvania, will enjoy a ten days' outing at Maxinkuckee with his family. They expect to go there tomorrow. Mr. Nulf is an enthusiastic fisherman and has more than ordinary success when engaged in that pastime.

Among the contemplated visits by shopmen next week are Foreman J. H. Kinkead, of the flue shop, and wife to Chicago; Machinist and Mrs. P. J. Morris to Columbia City, and Machinist and Mrs. W. H. Miller to Marion, Ind.

Louis Arens, F. A. Manzen, Albert Helder and Jesse Cole are new names on the Wabash shop pay rolls and the names of C. B. Moore and L. Rodenbeck were stricken from the rolls this morning. They will seek employment elsewhere.

W. O. Smith, of the New York Central, is inspecting 400 car wheels at the Bass foundry today for the Central. Mr. Smith makes similar inspections at the foundry three or four times each month and is quite well known in this city.

The carpenters set the window frames in the wall of the third story of the new silk knitting mills today. The structure will be under roof in a few days and will be equipped and in operation before the close of September.

Col. William M. Shaw, late passenger agent of the Burlington, was cremated at Cincinnati this afternoon. The funeral services were attended by hundreds of warm railway friends of the deceased and were very impressive. The services were at the Elks' temple and were under the auspices of that order.

Mr. Shunk, who resigned the position of bill clerk at the Fort Wayne Electric works a short time ago with a view of taking a position in Detroit, has declined the latter and returned to Fort Wayne. He may engage in the insurance business, having a flattering offer of that kind on hand.

The Lake Shore Electric company is completing new repair shops at Sandusky, Ohio, and the headquarters of that department will soon be transferred from Fremont to Sandusky. The removal will take from Fremont one of its best labor giving establishments and be quite a loss to that city.

Leroy Hartzler, Nickel Plate train dispatcher, who came home from the Pacific coast last Sunday, after a most enjoyable month's sojourn there, has returned to his duties in the railway office. Mr. Hartzler is one of the old employes of the company and will become a member of the Veterans' association this year.

Bellevue Gazette: "In preparation for heavy business during the fall and winter months the report has reached this city that eighteen firemen on the Fort Wayne division and twelve on the Cleveland division of the Nickel Plate will be promoted from the left to the right side of the engine cab. No official notification of the promotions have been received."

The steam motor car of the Rock Island road, which is en route to Chicago, has not yet reached the Western division of the Pennsylvania and will not be in Fort Wayne until early next week. While in the east, this car was "side swiped" by a freight engine and put out of commission. It was repaired at the Altoona shops of the Pennsylvania. The accident delayed the westward trip.

Captain Stoll and his patrolmen are experiencing considerable annoyance at present with boys coming and leaving the playgrounds on Holman and Clinton streets by way of the Pennsylvania tracks and jumping on and off trains and switch engines en route. Several accidents were narrowly averted and if the boys persist in the practice, some of them will be arrested if they do escape personal injury.

The family of Blacksmith L. E. Rehling, of the Pennsylvania, is again reunited, after being separated on account of one of the members being lightly attacked by smallpox. The patient was Ed Rehling, who has recovered and resumed work in the Pennsylvania shops. His sister, Miss Malinda, and brother, Oscar, who had been spending a few weeks with an aunt in Chicago, returned home this afternoon.

"Local Option" vs Piano Option

This is a "dry" proposition, but one that will well repay your unprejudiced investigation.

Many people who recently received purchasing coupons, orders or credit checks issued by the various piano houses have been getting wise and are investigating their real value and after looking over our stock of pianos they discovered that we do not handle cheap "assembled" or "stencil" pianos with inflated prices, but found our regular line of MANUFACTURED pianos—pianos that have a reputation—pianos that we have been handling for years—pianos with the same regular factory retail prices attached to them. They became convinced that by applying their coupons or checks on our pianos, they would get TRUE value received.

We did such a large business that our manager, Mr. J. Howard Moore, during the absence of Mr. Marttene in the east, telegraphed for two car loads of pianos which were all sold out within five days after they arrived. We have these coupons and checks issued by other houses and will gladly show them to any one interested to prove our statements. Upon Mr. Marttene's return home Thursday, he immediately wired for another car load which will arrive here Monday.

While we are at present accepting these coupons and checks issued by other houses at a premium of $10, we can assure the public that it is a losing proposition to us, but we were driven into it by the "catch penny" puzzle schemes of other dealers.

However, we are in this matter to a finish and are satisfied to continue in order to protect and at the same time advertise ourselves and earn the lasting friendship and gratitude of the piano purchasing public by our fair and honest dealing and by furnishing them GENUINE MANUFACTURED pianos at our regular factory prices.

Right here we wish to remind the public that we have conducted three successful, legitimate contests and in each case gave away free a valuable piano, which was worth working for. Show us the valuable premiums given away by dealers in their recent so-called contests.

To all those who are in possession of any coupons or checks issued by any concern in this city, who are thinking of buying a piano now or in the near future, we would advise them to bring them to our store at once while this offer is in force and reap the benefit by receiving our $10 premium in addition, because we may withdraw this offer at any moment.

Now is the time to save money. Terms to suit everybody. Don't forget that we offer $1,000 reward to any one who can prove that we have raised the prices of our instruments one cent.

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—MRS. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon Street, Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Alleging that his patents have been lost to him and that he has been ousted from the company, although under contract until 1918, Frank P. Grode, of Wabash, has brought receivership proceeding against Barcus & Co. and is suing for $30,000. His inventions are on school desks.

Charles Nicholson, a farmer northeast of Markle, committed suicide Friday by plunging headforemost into a well on his farm. His head was dashed against the rocks and death intervened shortly after. Nicholson was demented and application had been made for his admission to the insane asylum at Richmond.

Joe H. Lesh, of Goshen, has sold his mare, Myrtle Granett, 2:23¼, to an eastern horseman for $5,000. He purchased the animal from the Woodland Stock farm at Wabash on June 18 and at the sale price made a handsome profit. The mare has been entered for several races in the Grand circuit this year, but has not been started.

John, the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heckman, of Peru, was almost fatally injured about 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning, when a railroad torpedo exploded striking him in the head and about the body. His head and face were badly lacerated by the pieces of tin which flew in all directions. His hands were also badly cut and he is in danger of lockjaw.

Twelve Auburn lads who raided a carload of watermelons on the Lake Shore tracks there some days ago were arrested, fined $5 and costs each, sentenced to ten days in jail and required to pay $10 for the watermelons taken. There were twelve of the boys as follows: George Sebring, Carl Haywood, Carl Stark, Ed. Bumpus, Ora Peckhart, John Sperbeck, Lester Zolman, Paul Lobemiller, Ralph Shellhouse, Harry Squires and "Doc" Polston. After reading the boys a good lecture the judge suspended sentence as to jail imprisonment.

Cures Eczema Quickly

New Discovery Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Skin Diseases.

Nothing in the history of medicine has ever approached the success of the marvelous skin remedy known as poslam, which, it is safe to say, has cured more cases of eczema and skin diseases than any remedy ever offered for these ills.

The success of poslam is not at all surprising when it is considered that even a very small quantity applied to the skin stops itching immediately and cures chronic cases in two weeks. The very worst cases of eczema, as well as acne, herpes, tetter, piles, salt rheum, rash, crusted humors, scaly scalp and every form of itch, yield to it readily. Blemishes such as pimples, red noses, muddy and inflamed skin disappear almost immediately when poslam is applied, the complexion being cleared over night.

Every druggist keeps both the 50-cent size (for minor troubles) and the $2 jar, and either of these may be obtained in Fort Wayne at Meyer Bros. Co., as well as other reliable drug stores.

But no one is even asked to purchase poslam without first obtaining an experimental package which will be sent by mail, free of charge, upon request, by the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City.

THE AUCTION.

HERE is Polly's heart for sale!
Highest bidder wins!
Speak up, O ye timid male!
Time the flying spins.
What's your offer for a heart
Warm and full of cheer?
Let us have a bid to start.
What's the bid I hear?

LANDS? The bid is LANDS, my friends—
Acres broad and fine,
Full of teeming dividends
In the harvest line.
Any higher bid? O fie!
You're a sleepy band!
GOING—GOING—GOING! My!
Heart like this for LAND!

What? A bid of GOLD? Aha!
That's the way to bid.
Better than mere acres far
That cannot be hid.
Yet who'd win a heart like this
With a lump of GOLD?
GOING—GOING! Shame it is
If it thus were sold!

Ah, another bid comes in!
Speak up louder. FAME?
Here's a bidder hopes to win
With a gilded name.
But for hearts so warm and true
That's a trifle low.
GOING—GOING! Really you
Should not let it go!

GOING—GOING! Now, see here,
This is bargain day.
Win a heart so full of cheer
With a bit of bay?
Really— What's that? Speak up clear.
Ah, we're getting on!
LOVE'S the highest bid I hear.
GOING!
GOING!
GONE!

—John Kendrick Bangs in Harper's Weekly.

Seemed Fair.

"I'd like to know, of course," said the new man, with some concern, "whether my job is to be permanent or not."

"Well," returned the employer, "you can stay here as long as you please. That's fair, isn't it?"

"Certainly. I'm much ob"—

"On the other hand, I reserve the right to discharge you whenever I please. That's equally fair, isn't it?"

"Ye-es; I suppose so."—Chicago Tribune.

He Was Better Off.

"When I rejected you the other day," she began, with affected sweet confusion, "I did not"—

"You did not know I was wealthy," he interrupted coldly.

"Not at all. I knew you were well off, but"—

"I didn't know when I was or I shouldn't have proposed to you."

Her confusion then was not affected; neither was it sweet.—Philadelphia Press.

FOR WEAK NERVES

A PRODUCT OF THE ORIENT.

Lots of men fail in business because of lack of confidence. This vital failing is due nine times out of ten to physical conditions.

The causes usually are not far to seek. At just a little touch of brain fag, insomnia and increased irritability, then the nerves become unstrung and finally there is a complete physical break-down. To such a one there is no joy in living. The sure remedy is Persian Nerve Essence sold by all leading druggists, $1.00 per box, or six boxes for $5.00, or sent direct by mail on receipt of the price. We guarantee the six boxes to cure or refund money. Sold by Meyer Brothers Co., Three Drug Stores.

BY REV. F. F. DAVISON, RUTLAND, VT.

THE GOLDEN RULE IN PRACTICE.—International Bible Lesson for Aug. 29, '09.—(1 Cor. 13:1-13.)

Some years ago a ship was bound from Manila to Singapore. She took an Eastern passage among the Philippines, being eighty days on the voyage. A brig had sailed some time before, called the Armador, laden with cocoanut oil. A few days after the departure of the Manila ship, while there was a strong breeze, and a rough sea, the surface became all at once as smooth as a mill pond, although the breeze continued. On looking over the side, the crew discovered that they were sailing through a sea of oil. They continued in this oil track for three days. On arriving at her destination, it was found that the Armador had arrived a little while before with some of the oil casks broken, and that her sailors had been continually pumping oil out of the hold into the sea. On comparing logs, it appeared that when the oily surface was first seen, the two ships were at least two hundred miles apart. Such is the effect of oil upon the troubled waters.

Love, a Lubricant.

Now, in our lesson for to-day, Paul says that love has the same power over the stormy passions of life. He gives a list of things we are forbidden to do—the second table of the commandments, and then says that love is the secret of our ability to keep them. "Love is the fulfilling of the law." If we have love, of the right kind, and enough of it, we need not worry about our ability to keep every one of the commandments. Love is the golden rule in practice. It is a wonderful pacifier. A little love will go a long way in calming a troubled scene, and stilling angry passions. Let us but carry a large cargo of the oil of love, and when the storms are raging around us, keep the pumps working, pouring heaven's pacificator upon the troubled waters.

"It is love that thou lackest, thou poor old world!
Who shall make thy love hot for thee, frozen old world?
Thou are not happy as thou mightest be,
For the love of dear Jesus is little in thee.

Thus F. W. Faber sings the truth divinely stated,—"the greatest of these is love."

Love, a Mantle.

Suppose we should insist upon making the best of one another! Every one has his weakness, his faults, and we may make the worst of these by critically fixing our attention constantly upon them. The caricaturist sees everything twisted, distorted, exaggerated, out of proportion; the artist sees the angel in every rough block of marble, and beauty everyhere. The difference is in the men, in their eyes, what they are looking for. Love is not blind, but love carries a mantle, and like Noah's son's "Walks backward, with averted face, and hides the shame." By loving whatever is lovable in others, and there is no one who has not some lovely traits, love will flow back from them to us, and life will become a pleasure, rather than a pain, earth will be transformed, and we shall be unconsciously changed into His image, whose name is love.

Only love can do this. To delight in the graces and veil the defects of the person who opposed your plans, whose peculiar infirmities grate on the sensibilities, and from whose conspicuous faults your whole being recoils, is the highest summit of love.

But that is the only true, real love, and its exercise stamps the possessor as being heaven-born.

Give water to thy thirsty foe,
The sandal tree, as if to prove
How sweet to conquer hate by love
Perfumes the ax that lays it low."

Love, Self-Sacrificing.

In the Boston Public library there has just been unveiled a picture by a noted artist, entitled "The Redemption." It is a delineation of the crucified Christ. The painter, in order to tell the story of the self-sacrificing love of the Son of God, has represented at the foot of the cross a coiled serpent, pressed under the feet of Christ. It is the picture of divine love, surrendering itself to death, that it might bruise the serpent's head, and by so doing redeem the race from sin. Suppose he had stood upon his rights, had allowed those who had sinned to take the consequences, had sat in conscious rectitude far off, referring to men in tones of pity, but lifting no finger to relieve them. He might have done so. He was under no obligation to do otherwise. It was pure benevolence, unmerited favor, free grace and dying love, which caused him to "bear our sins in His own body on the tree."

Chicago's board of education has opened a school exclusively for tubercular children, and so popular has it been from the start that ten others will be established. Says the Daily News: "Thirty pupils—alert, enthusiastic, but 'physically abnormal' urchins—romped and played and enjoyed their instruction; they laughed when they washed dishes and did chores at camp; giggled when they washed their teeth, and when it came to the shower bath itself an innovation not even fancied, their joy knew no bounds."

INTENSE COLICKY PAINS RELIEVED.

"For some years I suffered from intense colicky pains which would come on at times and from which I could find no relief," says I. S. Mason, of Beaver Dam, Ky. "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended to me by a friend. After taking a few doses of the remedy I was entirely relieved. That was four years ago and there has been no return of the symptoms since that time." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

BIBLE CONFERENCE IS GROWING IN INTEREST

English Divines Making a Good Impression at Winona Lake.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 27.—Dr. F. E. Taylor, of the First Baptist church, of Indianapolis, is constantly growing in favor in his morning lectures on personal work. The earnestness of the speaker is contagious and all over the hall ministers are busy with note books jotting down the suggestions made for more effective work.

Indirect methods of doing personal work were suggested to Dr. Taylor. One of the most important of these is living consistently. Seek to do a daily kindness. The personal life is what counts. Many a boy has been won for Christ because of his mother's Christian life. Many a mother is preaching a daily sermon, though unknown to herself.

Direct Methods of Personal Work.

In speaking of the direct methods of personal work, Dr. Taylor emphasized the necessity of knowing how to approach men discreetly. It is a dangerous thing for a minister to numerate certain things as sins. It is wise for ministers to talk against the world, but not to specify a certain three things. Everyday Christians are doing infinitely worse things than dancing, theater going and card playing. These things are wrong, but do not specialize on them.

Dr. Taylor said that for the last three years he had made few calls on the women of his church. During this time he was fishing down town in the offices of the men. He felt sure if he once had the husband, the husband would get the wife. To fish successfully for men one must study them carefully and know the best means to approach them. Dr. Taylor begged the ministers to make a greater effort to hold the men, once they had them. Tomorrow Dr. Taylor will give a scriptural example of personal work.

Dr. Jowett to Leave.

Dr. J. H. Jowett, of Birmingham, England, will give his last sermon this evening. Several of his Winona sermons have emphasized the need of "Everyman" for the religion of Christ. What he is struggling for is perfect harmony and unity born out of faith and a knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Dr. Jowett says he is not worrying about theological harmony if he gets the other. What he wants is personal friendship with Jesus. He says he gives a little heresy when he believes that we are not all going to think alike in the next world.

Tennyson may have something to tell Sam Jones, and every day the land of glory will bring new surprises. We are not to lose our originality in heaven. John will still be John, Tennyson will be Tennyson and Sam Jones will be Sam Jones.

Dr. John Thomas, of Liverpool, will remain until next Tuesday, the closing day of the conference. This is Dr. Thomas' first visit to America and he is making a great effort to discover the difference between a republican and a democrat. He caused much merriment in his lecture today, by telling of his inquiries and how everyone avoided giving him a definite answer.

Raps Christian Scientists.

Dr. Thomas gave the Christian Scientists a rap when he said it was a new religion which had been discovered in America for the cure of hysteria. These cults are not what man wants, says Dr. Thomas; he is hungering for the universal religion of Jesus. He said that both in America and England the world is full of problems, but America will find that she will get the "suffragists" soon, and then she will have troubles.

Dr. Gunsaulus gives his closing lecture today. This course on the Gospel of St. John has been the deepest given to the conference. Men have complained of the headache, after trying to follow these lectures, but Dr. Gunsaulus disowns responsibility and said it was St. John.

During all of the sermons by the noted American, Dr. Gunsaulus, the English ministers have sat on the platform and listened attentively. At the close of today's lecture Dr. Thomas grasped the hand of the speaker and warmly congratulated him.

Dr. Francis J. McConnell, president of DePauw university, will begin speaking today and will preach several sermons during his stay at Winona.

DIPLOMATS CLASH OVER RANK.

Spanish Minister Takes Precedence—Mexican Cuts Toledo.

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 27.—Marquis De Villalobar, minister from Spain, and Luis Pastor, secretary of the Spanish legation, were entertained at a banquet last night as the culmination of his visit to Toledo to attend the King Wamba carnival. The attendance of Don Francisco Leon De La Barra, ambassador from Mexico, was prevented by a misunderstanding as to precedence, which arose from the fact that after he agreed to come, the Spanish minister received commission as the direct representative of King Alfonso, and as such took the ground that he was entitled to precedence.

Senor De La Barra, because of his superior diplomatic rank, declined to concede the point when the matter was referred to him and to avoid complications canceled his engagement.

Marquis DeVillalobar's response to the toast of Judge John S. Doyle, conveyed in the name of his sovereign and of his country, greetings and best wishes for the prosperity of the American city named after the old Spanish Toledo.

PHILLIPS TIGHT IN PINCHES; WINS 2 TO 0

Veteran Kept Hits Scattered Through the Engagement.

[Special to The Sentinel.]

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 27.—Manager Bill Phillips picked himself for mound duty against the Fort Wayne team in the second meeting of the final struggle on the local lot and although he was hit just as often as Walter Miller, who opposed him, he was mighty stingy with men on bases and wormed himself out of a couple of holes during the combat when a hit would have tied up the score which was 2 to nothing at the close.

Of the five hits registered against Miller two were ripped off with men on second and in each instance a score resulted which gave the game to the home nine. He was in a number of tight places but by some high class pitching he managed to clean up without allowing a score to be registered by the opposition. Clark hit a couple of times during the engagement but was a bit off in his throwing and four bases were stolen on him.

Umpire Eckman, who has been on the sick list, was able to work and he reported here in time for the second game. Manager Jack Hendricks protested against the work of Gosney on Monday when he gave the Stogies a couple of close decisions that won the game for them and declined to play with the local man handling the indicator. When Phillips was in Fort Wayne the last trip he declined to play with the substitue umpire behind the mask and Hendricks did not think he ought to take any more chances on the Wheeling grounds.

Wheeling counted in the first inning and the run was enough to insure victory. Soffel hit to left to start the game and Benny Jewell advanced him with a sacrifice. McKechnie was retired but Miller took a chance with Bob Tarleton instead of passing him and he got a single that scored Soffel.

A base on balls developed into a tally in the fourth. After Donahue had been retired Bisland was passed and he stole second. Magie was put down without damage but Krebs sloughed the ball for a single and sent Sir Rivington home.

A chance to tie the score in the third was lost for want of a hit. Clark opened the inning with a single and Miller moved him up with a bunt and he took third when Benny Jewell booted Blount's grounder but with two men on and one gone both of the Fort Wayne heavy hitters—Channell and Elston fell down with the stick.

The next chance was lost in the fifth. Clark and Miller hit and Blount advanced both men with a sacrifice and both Donahue and Channell hit the ball hard but some fast fielding on the part of Bill Phillips prevented the men from scoring. The score:

DETROIT PULLS OUT IN LEAD BY A WINNING

Licks Athletics While Red Sox Stand Still—The Scores.

Detroit, Aug. 27.—By winning its third consecutive victory over Philadelphia, 6 to 0, while Boston was breaking even at Chicago, the Detroit team materially increased its lead over the two eastern contenders. As it stands now the local club has seventeen points' lead over the Philadelphians and twenty-four points over Boston. It has still to meet the latter team during the present western tour of the eastern clubs.

The game was in marked contrast to the two that preceded it. Those were close and exciting. The third one was almost a walk-over for Detroit. The visitors could not hit Mullin, three of their four safeties being grounders that infielders handled. Score: R.H.E.

CINCINNATI CATCHER WHOSE INJURIES MAY RETIRE HIM PERMANENTLY.

"BIG LARRY" McLEAN, CINCINNATI'S CATCHER.

It is reported that "Big Larry" McLean, the well known catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, may never play another game. The good natured backstop had his kneecap badly injured in a collision with Roy Thomas at the plate in a game at Cincinnati the other day. The doctors who examined "Larry's" knee say that he will never be able to play again. His leg, the doctors say, will be stiff when the injured knee cap heals, and this will keep him from being able to run. The loss of McLean is a big blow to the Reds as well as to the great national game. McLean was considered one of the best catchers in the business. A giant in stature, he was a great steadier for young pitchers. He was a fast man for his height, a good batter and had a cool head, which he used to advantage in tight places. "Fans" all over the country hope that the reports are exaggerated and that next year will find the husky giant back in harness holding down his old post behind the bat.

PIRATES WIN WHILE CUBS LOST BIG BATTLE

Pittsburg Rallies in the Seventh—Reulbach is Badly Beaten.

New York, Aug. 27.—Pittsburg tightened its grasp on first place by defeating New York, 6 to 3. The visitors were behind until the seventh inning, and after they had tied the score on hits by Abstein and Wilson and errors by Merkle and Doyle, Leach made a home run, Byrne scoring ahead of him. These two runs sufficed to beat New York. Adams, who relieved Leifield after the sixth, did not allow a hit. The Pittsburg club will be joined this week by Pitchers Moore, of Dallas, and Luyster, of Hartford. The score: R.H.E.

CHOLERA INFANTUM CURED.

"Something like two years ago my baby, which was then about a year old, was taken seriously ill with cholera infantum, vomiting and purging profusely, writes J. F. Dempsey, of Dempsey, Ala. I did what I could to relieve her but did her no good, and being very much alarmed about her went for a physician but failed to find one, so came back by Elder Bros. & Carter's store and Mr. Elder recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy. I procured a bottle of it, went home as quickly as possible and gave the baby a dose of the remedy. It relieved her in fifteen minutes and soon cured her entirely." For sale by all druggists.

TOTS FINISHED THE GAME WITH BIG RALLY

Bunched Hits on Humphries in Final Innings and Won Out.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 27.—For six innings Ed Asher and Bert Humphries fought a pitching duel but the Tots finally got to the Grand Rapids hurler in the seventh and eighth and by bunching hits scored five runs and won the game handily. The field was wet and slippery from recent rains but the fielding of both clubs was exceptionally fast and the errors did not count in the run column. The score: R.H.E.

CENTRAL LEAGUE NOTES.

All of the home teams are winning in the Central league this trip and the statement by Dr. Carson that he can not get rid of home umpiring is being demonstrated.

Thursday marked the seventh consecutive hitless game for Bisland. He has made but four hits in the eleven games since his name was changed from Rivington to Bisland.

Evansville Courier: Carey, the Bender's new shortstop, looks good in spite of the fact that he made two errors yesterday and did not get a hit. He handles himself well and when at bat steps into the pitchers' curves as though he meant business.

Dick Hoblitzel, the Parkersburg, W. Va., boy who holds down first base for the Cincinnati Reds, and who once played end on the University of Pittsburg (then Y. U. P.) football team, and who played first base for Wheeling the latter part of last season, after "Louie" Heilbroner had discovered him. Tuesday smashed the season's record for total bases on hits in the major leagues. In the game at New York, against Pitchers Crandall, Marquard and Ames, "Hobby" smashed out two three baggers and a home run, a total of 10 bases, which is the highest mark made in the National and American league this year.

"Big Gene" Moore will not report to the Zanesville club this season according to a statement made by Manager Montgomery. The manager in a talk with him was told that he would hardly get back in the game this season. He will report there at the opening of next season unless he's drafted.

Joe Connolly will join the Zanesville team Saturday. Montgomery said the hard-hitting pitcher would not be used in the box so it looks like he would have plenty of opportunities to wield that trusty ash of his. His hitting won three games from Wheeling for Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Walker, the mother of "Dixie" Walker, the Infants' pitching protege, will arrive in Zanesville the last of the week and will be an interested spectator at Sunday's double-header with the Fort Wayne club. Mrs. Walker hasn't seen her son since he entered professional ranks. It is probable that Ewart will be sent in to take care of both games Sunday and the fans will see him pitching his best—pitching to but two eyes in the grand stand.

COBB DENIES STORY THAT HE PLAYS "DIRTY"

Tiger Says He Never Tried to Spike Anybody in His Career.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—"Ty" Cobb, the star outfielder of the local American league, positively denied today that he, or to his knowledge, any other members of the Detroit team have attempted to spike players on opposing teams.

After reading the statement of President Johnson that he, Cobb, must stop spiking players or quit the game, Cobb said:

"I have never attempted to spike another player, and I deny positively the charge. Of course I run the bases hard and slide hard. But the base lines, by every rule of base ball, belong to the runner and if the baseman chooses deliberately to get in the path and try to block the runner off, he does so at his own peril. I did not maliciously spike Third Baseman Baker, of the Philadelphia team. I slid into third base and he was on the line.

"The umpires whom President Johnson hires have seen me every time I have slid into a base and the baseman has been hurt. If I have murderously and deliberately tried to put out of the game any of these men why have not the umpires reported me?"

NOTES OF THE OPENING GAME.

(Wheeling News.)

Hammond has worked against Wheeling six times this season and four times the locals beat him. In one game, however, he relieved Miller with the bases full and the score tied and an error let in the winning run.

Soffel was twice robbed of hits, once by Donohue who made a stab of his liner over third and again by Channell, who made a remarkable running catch, getting the ball almost on the ground.

In the ninth inning Channell led off with a hit, but never got off first base.

Channell is one of the prettiest runners in the game. He made a great sprint from the plate to third on his drive to right field but the ground rules sent him back to second.

Only two clean hits were made off Hammond. McKechnie's double was a mix up against the fence, and Donohue and Soffel got scratch infield singles. Donohue's was a beauty bunt which caught Cousin Frank asleep at third.

It looked almost hopeless with Fort Wayne two runs to the good and Hammond holding the Smokes hitless, but when the rally came it was a great one and one of the most exciting of the season.

Harry Hammond pitched a remarkably fine game—for five innings.

The retirement of Hammond under fire was great consolation to the local fans, almost as much as was driving Big Ed Smith to cover.

Channell made a beauty steal of third on Krebbs. He got a flying start and no attempt was made to catch him.

Boston Fighter to Make His First Appearance Here Against a Good Man at the Fairmont Club.

"SANDY" FERGUSON

New York, Aug. 27.—Great interest is being displayed in the ten-round bout at the Fairmont Athletic club this evening between "Sandy" Ferguson, of Boston, who will make his initial appearance in New York, and "Joe" Jeanette.

Jeanette is training at Union Hill, N. J., and is working very hard, as he realizes that Ferguson is a hard man to beat. Jeanette plays basketball for a half hour each day, as well as boxing six fast three minute rounds with "Jim" Stewart. After watching Jeanette in action it is easy to understand how he defeated McVey in forty-nine rounds in Paris last spring.

Ferguson has fought Jeanette twice before. In Paris Jeanette got the decision and in Boston Ferguson. The friends of Ferguson say he will settle once for all time that he can whip Jeanette by knocking him out in this battle. Ferguson has been working for the last month up in the New Hampshire hills, and he is in the very best condition at the present time.

OUR SHORT STORY PAGE

DR. BURKE'S CURE

Copyright, 1909, by Benj. B. Hampton.

By Dorothy Canfield

EVERY time the older clergyman looked at the younger he gave a groan of self-pity for which he felt little, if any, shame. It came near being a case of simple self-preservation, he thought, and did his best to harden his quivering Celtic heart.

"I mustn't get interested in him," he said to himself, despairingly. "I mustn't get sympathetic, or Lulu will scold so."

Lulu was the inimitably incongruous name of his wife, a firm-lipped, even-handed New England woman, set by Providence, so she said, as a guard over the too-facile sympathies of the husband she idolized. She was undaunted by his rise to great fame, and ordered about the celebrated Dr. Burke with as unshaken a certainty that she knew his wants and needs better than he, as though he were still young Michael Burke, the handsome and romantic emigrant who had captured her heart.

It had not been she alone, however, who had sent him upon this enforced vacation which he was now trying so conscientiously to guard intact. The whole worshipping parish, seeing fatigue in his keen, gentle eyes, and traces of nervous strain about the mobile, eloquent, well-beloved mouth, had risen as one man and insisted on his going away to a remote New England nook in the mountains where he would not be known.

The last condition was the idea of the great nerve-specialist, one of his parishioners, who withdrew from the position of adoring affection, common to all St. James people when their rector was in question, long enough to regard Dr. Burke as a "case."

"He must go where people will not know him," was his verdict. "He must wear a pepper-and-salt suit and a red necktie if necessary, so nobody'll think he's a clergyman, and he must not sympathize with a living soul! Don't some of you know a place where everybody's fat and prosperous and complacent? He has simply borne our burdens and lived our lives in his wonderful way so long that he must have a rest. His insight into suffering humanity has grown unnaturally keen, and he cannot see any of us fainting for some subtle, spiritual lack that he does not, with his marvellous skill, bring to us what we need. But it's at the cost of his very heart's life, and he must be naturally and humanly selfish for a time, or the exquisitely fine machinery which makes him what he is will snap in a thousand places."

The nerve-specialist was one of the vestry, and this homily was delivered at the first vestry meeting after his examination of Dr. Burke. Each of the vestrymen loved his rector as much as the nerve-doctor, and each of them repeated the exhortation in his own words to the tired man. Moreover, each of them told his wife, and each wife repeated it to Mrs. Burke. What Mrs. Burke said to her husband is not recorded, but it was probably vigorous, for he set out upon his quest for quiet, genuinely alarmed about his condition and firmly resolved to be as near an approach to a cabbage as possible. And here he was upon the second day feeling his heart go out towards the young boy-rector of the little mountian parish in one of those swift rushes of intuitive insight which made him so worshipped by his parish, but which had also reduced him to the state of pallor and nerves in which he found himself.

He struggled valiantly against this obsession. He took solitary walks and rides over the enchanting country, trying to forget the sad note in the boy's voice and the perplexed and mournfully bewildered look in his eyes. He told himself impatiently that he was like a machine which was worn too smooth-running for practical purposes. He had been used, half-humorously, to think of himself as a contrivance which ran sympathy upon the pushing of a button. But now it had escaped from his control. The reverse-cogs no longer worked. It ran sympathy indiscriminately, as though the button had stuck fast and was pushing in all the time.

Thus he reasoned to himself when he was away from the little boarding-house where he and the young Mr. Melville were the only guests, and he went back to the appetizing meals sure of his power to resist the insidious appeal of youth in distress. But as he noted with the unerring eye of a great soul-specialist the signs of spiritual unrest, and diagnosed the case from stray indications in the conversation which would have meant nothing to anyone less gifted with the magical insight that was his, he felt a miserable certainty that he would succumb before long to the temptation to put out his wise, kind hand and give just the touch to this unbalanced life that was needed.

It was after a moonlight walk with the young rector that he finally felt himself conquered. Up to that time he had repeated despairingly what his wife was always saying to him: "Suppose I had not happened along? He would have pulled through somehow." But on that night, as he lay tensely awake, watching the steady patches of moonlight on the porch outside his window, he realized that this was a selfish shirking of responsibility—a callous repetition of the world-old cry of "Am I my brother's keeper?" He remembered himself in his first parish, and the apparently soul-rending doubts and unbeliefs which then assailed him, and how he would have blessed Heaven if some wise, kind elder could have put a steadying hand on his whirling, aching, self-doubting head. When the boy spoke with such a shrinking horror in his voice of his doubts as to his capacity to be a clergyman, with all that it meant, Michael Burke felt a responsive quiver in his own ever-young Irish heart, and he longed to show the dear lad sweetly and tenderly, as only he could, how ludicrously he was overestimating his own importance. When the troubled soul, holding in a final restraint the impulses of his helpful heart, tugging at the leash of his prudence.

That night, as has been said, he lay long awake, feeling his whole being warm and glow into the heat that always preceded one of his great efforts, either a sermon or a soul-to-soul struggle with the powers of evil and doubt. He had a sort of zest in letting himself go, lifted high out of his worry about his health by the tidalwave of this sacrificial fervor.

Although he knew that, while it would sweep his beneficiary out into the wide sea of healthful endeavor, its receding would leave him nerveless and limp on the shore of physical and spiritual lassitude, he had so exhilarated a joy in the prospect of the righteous exercise of his great power, that he even doubted for a moment whether he did not, after all, rather enjoy his adroitness in manipulating souls, whether it was not becoming an exciting game of skill with him more than a prayerful act of devotion.

DR. BURKE HAD NEVER SPOKEN BETTER.

But he was too wise a man, and had won his wisdom too hardly by terrors of self-distrust, to allow such fantastic doubts of his disinterestedness to trouble him much. He recognized them as among the most insidious wiles of the arch enemy, and put them resolutely on one side, as he meant to teach the Reverend Mr. Melville to do before the end of his month's stay in Clarendon.

He slept very little that night, and although insomnia had grown to be a wretchedly steady habit with him, he could not but attribute his tossing restlessness to the subtle struggle which lay before him. The next morning he arose keyed up for the beginning of his task. He tried to forget Lulu, and succeeded at the first sight of the young clergyman's pale, drawn face. He made conversation, casual, kind, impersonal talk, and before Mr. Melville knew it he had made an appointment to show the tired-looking elderly man in the pepper-and-salt suit the view of the cascades by moonlight—the one show place of the little village.

That day was one of mingled joy and faintness to Michael Burke, but when the two started out together he felt himself like a well-tuned instrument, ready for the master's hand.

He began by telling the young man abruptly who he was; not just any Mr. Burke resting from too much devotion to business, but Michael Burke—of St. James, New York—"the one they call 'Father Michael,' you know."

The young clergyman stopped abruptly in the shade of a pine tree as if stricken dumb by this announcement, and the other felt sympathetically the heart-sick rush of chagrin of the self-conscious rector as he thought of his last night's sermon being heard by the world-famous preacher. His heart overflowed suddenly, and putting his hand on his comrade's shoulder, he said in the sweet, deep voice which went always to his own heart as well as to his hearer's: "I tell you that, my dear fellow, because this last week has made me wish to be 'Father Michael' to you, too."

Mr. Melville stammered out an incoherent expression of gratitude, and the conversation was launched. They had started out to see the cascades, but they did not stir from under the pine tree's dense shadow. For two hours Dr. Burke felt he had never spoken better. He went over the trials of his youth—he had been a boy not unlike his companion—and he drew from them the gently ironical and healing essence of experience with which he had soothed so many troubled souls. He touched—but this very lightly—upon the anguish of first feeling the horrors of incompetence, the sermons that missed fire, the precious opportunities lost. He reserved more on this head until a later date, when they should be drawn more together and the boy really should have opened his heart. He spoke of the uplifting consciousness of one's final insignificance which was such a comfort to sane middle-life and to which the young man would certainly come through these very trials of his stormy youth. Of doctrines he spoke sparingly, but with a wide allowance for youthful scorn of theology, and with a tolerant, kindly smile for blasting moments of apparently world-rocking scepticism. The mere fact of having taken orders, after all, could not protect you against unbelief, he urged his young friend to know; and the priest must forge his own armor of faith by his own lustiest efforts, or go naked and shivering all his life. He must have his own interpretation of the holy truths of the church, and there was no better beginning than honest doubt.

At this he was suddenly aware that he was very tired, his knees shaking under him and his head heavy and throbbing. He rose and proposed that they go back to the house. He recalled that he would have a whole month with this boy soldier, and that perhaps he had said enough for the first time.

The Reverend Mr. Melville walked beside him in silence, his head bowed. Dr. Burke respected his confusion and said nothing. At the door the young man roused himself, took the other's hand ardently in his and said, earnestly: "I can't tell you, Dr. Burke, how much you have helped me! You have given me a new inspiration!" The older man waved his thanks aside deprecatingly, but he went to his room with a glowing heart in a very tired body.

As he laid himself down wearily in his bed, his fatigue was for a moment lightened by the inevitable conscious joy of an artist who has done well. "It was one of my great moments," he said to himself, with an honest pride. [He thought, half-regretfully, what a sermon he could have preached with the fire and feeling he had used up on this obscure boy, but upbraided himself at once for the thought which he recognized as mercenary.]

There was no trying to sleep. His tense nerves twitched and twanged all through him like overstrained violin strings. He felt that he could never relax again in his life; and reflected that this might mean the turning point for him, that this time he might really overdo so that he could never get back to a healthy state of nervous equilibrium again. "No matter about me," he said stoutly to his fainting heart; "it is an immortal soul to be saved for the service of good," and he turned himself to watch the steady light of the moon on the veranda floor.

A shadow passed before his window, and the Reverend Mr. Melville walked past with his arm around the waist of a girl in white. Dr. Burke remembered that the young rector was engaged to be married, and smiled sympathetically.

"I MEANT TO BE KIND TO HIM."

The next moment he started on hearing his own name spoken, and in an instant was so transfixed by what he heard that he forgot he was eavesdropping.

"Did you ever hear of the Reverend Mr. Michael Burke, pussy dear?" asked the young man.

"No," said the girl, promptly. "Is he the old man who's boarding here?"

Father Michael bounded indignantly in his bed at the adjective.

"Yes," said the other. "I didn't know he was a minister till to-night. He dragged me out for a moonlight walk and told me he was 'Father Michael.' He spoke so pompously about it that I was scared, for fear he'd realize I'd never heard of him. I just stopped short, trying to remember the name. It seems to me vaguely that I have heard him spoken of, too. Isn't there an emotional old preacher in some sensational church in New York by that name?"

The girl made no response, and the other went on: "Well, he's like all other old men—too fond of the sound of his own voice, and so garrulous about his youth! I thought he never would get through telling me anecdotes of his young days. I meant to be kind to him, but, when you consider that he was keeping me away from you, you can imagine that I was not vitally interested in his reminiscences."

There was an interlude of appropriate silence after this, and then the girl asked, "How's your poor tooth?"

"Better, to-day, thank Heaven. Yesterday I really thought I could not go through the service. By the way, Helen, darling, what did you think of the sermon in the evening? Didn't it strike you as pretty good? I thought that point about the health of content was not so bad. It really seems odd to me sometimes that I should have so little trouble about speaking without notes. It just seems to come natural to me."

"It was wonderful," breathed the girl, rapturously—"wonderful! I felt the tears in my eyes all the time—and when I thought how you were suffering every minute from toothache, I—"

There was another silence. Then the young minister spoke again.

"You know how worried I have been about arranging the heating plant of that old house we're going to use as parish-house? Well, it was the funniest thing—all the while this old man was talking I kept turning it over in my mind—it's really been making me lose my appetite; I thought I was no good, and not fit to be the leader of a parish because I couldn't solve that problem—and finally an inspiration about a straight pipe up from the old kitchen came to me from a figure he was drawing idly on the dust with his cane." He paused and laughed a little with a boyish mischief. "I hope it wasn't deceiving and un-Christian, but I just couldn't keep the joke to myself, and when I said goodnight to my old sermonizer I told him he never could know how he had helped me. He never will, either!"

The girl laughed with him, a tinkling gush of amusement and admiration that disappeared before the sudden severity of her sweetheart's voice as he went on. "But, if he is a clergyman, as he claims, he has the most extraordinary ideas on theology. Really, Helen," he spoke with a youthfully solemn condemnation—"I really shouldn't think him quite safe." He lowered his voice to a greater hush. "Honestly, he didn't sound quite—quite orthodox to me!"

There is a limit to all things. At this the Reverend Dr. Michael Burke sprang from his bed, and, rushing across the floor with an agility he had not suspected to be in him, he slammed the window down, banging it so that an echo resounded through all the house.

But he was Irish for other things than for quick sympathies, and before he reached his bed again he was shaken by a laughter that seemed to tear him away from all his old moorings. He buried his face in his pillows to stifle the sound of his noisy peals of mirth—he felt overwhelmed, drowned, as wave after wave of hilarity swept over him. His tired nerves reacted from their tense strain of a few moments before into a wild jangle of hysterical realization of the joke on him. It seemed to him that he could never stop laughing. Every time he recalled the scene under the pine tree he burst into guffaws and beat his hands upon the pillow. He thought of his last meditation before the dialogue outside began. "No matter about me—it is an immortal soul to be saved," and his piqued vanity was fairly annihilated by his sense of the inimitable irony of the situation. The same quality in him that made him an instrument exquisitely responsive to emotion made him lie alone in the darkened room and plunge from one depth of uncontrollable mirth to another. As fast as a convulsion of laughter subsided into faint, breathless chuckles, old phrases of his exhortation floated across his brain—"the joy of realizing one's final insignificance in the world," "how cheerful it made middle-age to know that youth always ludicrously exaggerated its own importance," and he lay back on his pillows, shouting and crowing hysterically until his breath gave out and he shook in noiseless giggles.

Finally he realized that he was dog-tired, and at the same time he felt dimly that he was relaxed and unstrained as he had not been for many months * * * * but before he could stop to philosophize on this he fell suddenly asleep like a little child.

When he awoke the sun was shining brightly, and the house was noisy with active life. He reached for his watch and looked at it incredulously. It pointed to twenty minutes to twelve. He had slept almost half the day. The fourteen-year-old son of his landlord passed the open window and he called him in. "Don't you want to go fishing with me to-day?" he asked, yawning happily as he sat up and rubbed his eyes. "I'm going fishing the rest of the time I'm here. Come along."

After the boy had gone he rose and went to the mirror. On the way, a belated spasm of laughter overtook him, and when he looked at himself he hardly recognized the healthily flushed and smiling face which greeted him. He surveyed this carefree image complacently for some time, and, finally, with a freakish return to his boyhood, he stuck out his tongue and shook a jocular fist at the looking-glass. "Sure, an' 'tis not you that can iver say it does a man no good to lave his own parish a bit!" he cried, assuming his broadest brogue, and then, "Och, faith! an' I wish Lulu could see me jist now!"

IT IS CREATING A WONDERFUL STIR HERE.

People all over the town are talking about the wonderful good Root Juice is doing in this community, as it has made many remarkable cures during the past few months. A well-known lady who for social reasons does not want her name published, said: "I had been in poor health for several years. The doctors gave me medicine for catarrh of the stomach, gastric ulcers, indigestion, dyspepsia and stomach troubles generally, but I derived no benefit. My appetite was variable—sometimes hungry as a wolf, then sickening at the mere thought of food. I was subject to dizzy spells and sick headache. I was than, weak, despondent and nervous, and had to take some kind of medicine all the time on account of my badly constipated condition. A lady friend told me that she had suffered very much as I did, but that Root Juice had completely cured her, so I concluded to try it, and before I had used the first bottle I was rapidly improving in every way. I continued taking the truly great medicine about six weeks, and if there is anything the matter with me now I don't know it. I now enjoy my food and digest it. I sleep well. I am no longer constipated, weak or nervous, and have plenty of flesh and strength." Such good reports of the great medicine are being heard all over town. It is sold for one dollar a bottle or three bottles for two dollars and a half. Those who are interested can learn of many of the wonderful things it is doing by going to Bradley Bros. drug store (old Wagner stand,) near transfer corner.

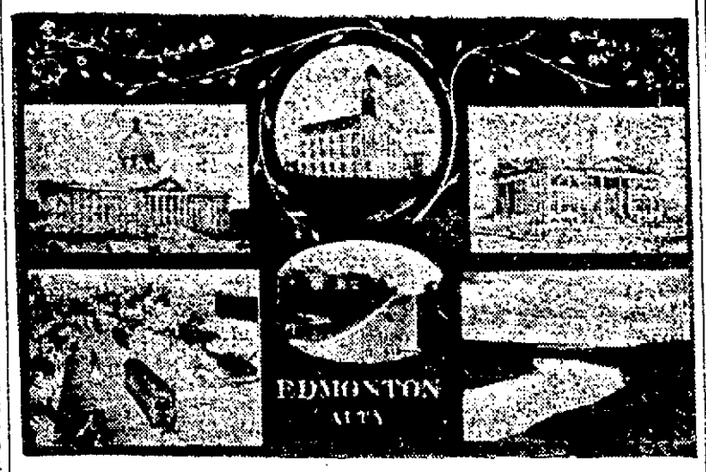
NORTHWESTERN CANADIAN TOWN THAT HAS BEEN GROWING SOME.



But a few short years ago Edmonton was a struggling ranch town in the northern part of Canada, and today it is one of the most enterprising and progressive centers throughout the province.

Situated on the high banks of the Saskatchewan river and being the only outlet to the northern country, it affords splendid opportunities for investors. It has two splendid railroads, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern, while the new Grand Trunk Pacific road is building here for a direct line to the Pacific coast.

In building operations the city has come along with bounds. The new parliament building, its magnificent court house and post office building are indeed a credit to the hustling Canadian city. Real estate parcels which formerly sold for a few hundred dollars are now fetching thousands.

BLAMED WIFE FOR NEGLECT.

Retort From Mrs. Bowser—Angry Man Recounted Mishaps to His Clothes and Resolved to Press Own Trousers In Future.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

At ten minutes to 6 o'clock the other evening Mrs. Bowser took her seat on the front steps to wait for Mr. Bowser's homecoming. At five minutes to 6 she saw him drop off a car at the corner, and a shade of anxiety came to her face. Mr. Bowser's walk showed that he was disgruntled about something. His shoulders slouched and his feet dragged.

Mrs. Bowser was ready with a smile as the lord of the manor opened the gate, but he did not look at her. She rose to meet him as he dragged himself up the steps as if he had a bale of hay tied to each leg, but he ignored her.

"Well, it has been a fine day," she observed.

"Humph."

"Anything gone wrong at the office?"

He uttered a sigh as he hung up his hat and another as he made a kick at the cat and missed her by a rod, and as he followed down to dinner something like a moan escaped him.

"LOOK AT THESE INFERNAL OLD TROUSERS, WILL YOU?"

It might have been a moan or it might have been a swear word. In the case of a man it's sometimes hard to tell.

"Have you got a toothache?" asked Mrs. Bowser as they sat down at the table.

"Of course not," he replied, with a scowl.

"Has your rheumatism broken out again?"

No reply to this—just a gurgle.

"You haven't had a chill, have you? You look a little blue around the lips."

"Never mind what ails me," was his dreary reply. "I am of no account in the house anyhow. It wouldn't matter in the slightest if I were brought home dead."

Mrs. Bowser smiled to her inner self, but said no more. She knew that all would be explained later on. From time to time during the dinner hour Mr. Bowser sighed wearily and rolled up his eyes and picked at his food as if some great sorrow was gnawing at his heartstrings. He had walked up and down the sitting room ten minutes before he turned on Mrs. Bowser with:

"I have been thinking things over and have decided it is time for me to leave the house. I seem to be more of a cheap boarder here than anything else, and I am tired of the position."

"What nonsense! If there is a husband in the world that gets more attention than you do I should like to see him. Cheap boarder, indeed! What has happened today? What do you want to find fault with?"

"Will you look at this necktie?" he asked as his hand went up to it. "Will you just cast your eyes on the old rag I've been wearing around my neck all day?"

"Yes, that tie is all of a year old. It is frayed and wrinkled, and there are about sixteen different paint spots on it. It was in the rag bag, and you hunted it out this morning and put it on. What else?"

Calls Attention to Defects.

"It's no use to say anything, but look at this hole in my shoe. Did you ever before see a respectable man wearing a shoe like that? Ten million people have looked at that yawning hole today and wondered what sort of wife I had at home."

"Ten million people haven't done any such thing!" sharply replied Mrs. Bowser. "In the first place the hole is hardly large enough to be seen, and in the next it was your business to have had it patched. No wife goes around with her eyes on her husband's feet. He is supposed to know when they need cobbling."

"Woman, do you know who I am?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he drew himself up.

"Yes, I think I know."

"Then tell me how on earth this rip came in my coat! Here it is, under the arm, and the whole town has been grinning at it all day long. Am I to be thus humiliated because you gad about and have no time to mend my clothes?"

"Yes, there is a rip under your arm if you knew it this morning you said nothing to me about it. If you didn't know it when you went away then neither of us is to blame. I think you made the rip this morning when you were lifting up the gate to see why it didn't shut. Go on."

"I got on the car this morning to find whitewash on my hat. Think of it—whitewash on Bowser's hat! All the passengers were looking and smiling and nudging each other, and when I took off my hat to brush it one big bull necked loafer laughed out 'haw, haw, haw!' I felt like sinking through the floor of the car with shame."

"So you had whitewash on your hat. Well, let me tell you where you got it. You stopped in to see the carpenter before you took the car, and you must have run against something."

"Butted my head, did I?" fairly howled the martyr as he sawed the air with his arms. "Woman, am I a goat, that I go around butting things! I tell you that whitewash was on my hat when I left this house, and if you had been any sort of wife you would have seen it. Doubtless you did see it, but desired to make me an object of ridicule. It is no wonder that I am looked upon with pity."

"And your further complaints, Mr. Bowser?"

"I have millions of them. Look at these infernal old trousers, will you?"

"I see them. You had them made to order three months ago and paid the tailor $9. Have they shrunk or faded?"

"No, but they bag at the knees, and where can you find any creases? They look like meal bags drawn over hitching posts and yet you let me wear them around and don't say a word. No wonder the gamins cry out to each other to get on to my legs!"

"But do I wear your trousers?" protested Mrs. Bowser. "If they bag at the knees and the creases have vanished you should take them to the tailor. I have never pressed a pair yet, and I don't think I could make a good job of it, but if you say so I will try."

"I do not ask your assistance. I will do it myself. Just get your nose into a novel and leave me to do your work for you."

Efforts at Pressing a Failure.

There was no more to be said on Mr. Bowser's part. He went down to the kitchen and put a flatiron on the stove, and by the time he had changed it was ready for him. He had had no experience as a presser, but he went ahead with the greatest confidence. After he had pulled and hauled at the trousers for ten minutes to get the "baggy" out he laid them on the table and applied the hot iron to make the creases. It so happened at this moment that a fight between cats began in the back yard, and he left his iron to rush out and annihilate the disturbers. He was looking on and betting his coin on a one eared feline when Mrs. Bowser called to him from a window above:

"I smell burning cloth. You'd better go in and see to your trousers."

It was time. Indeed, it was past time. The hot iron had scorched and charred and shriveled until little was left of those nine dollar trousers but buttons and buckles. Slowly and carefully Mr. Bowser gathered up the remains. Slowly and with dignity he bearer the still hot iron out of the back door and went upstairs. He paused a moment in the doorway to transfix Mrs. Bowser with a glare, and then he held up the remnants and hoarsely whispered:

"Woman, behold your work!"

"I thought something was burning," she replied, "but what have I to do with it? You let them burn while you were looking at the cats."

"Not a word more, woman—not a word! This is the last hair. I have borne and borne, but I shall bear no longer. Tomorrow we will consult our respective lawyers and begin proceedings for divorce. Should any one ask for me in the next hour tell them I am in the library and cannot be disturbed on any account. Good night, madam; good night to you!"

WINNERS OF TROPHIES.

Successful Contestants for Farmers' Day Prizes at Robison Park.

Contests for prizes formed the big afternoon feature of Farmers' Day at Robison park Thursday and furnished much amusement. The hitching contest for ladies was not held owning to a misunderstanding of the terms, so the wood sawing contest for ladies was the first event on the program. The prize of a set of Rogers' silver knives and forks was won by Mrs. W. A. Arney. Mrs. W. H. Arney took second honors. The fat men's race came next and was won by "Fattie" Dunbar, who weighs 220 pounds. He was given a nice shaving set. The boys' race, prize silver mounted banjo, was won by George Ray, while the girls' foot race, prize gold bracelet, was won by Miss Gillie. In the old men's race the honors went to James McKinley, of Springfield township. He was also the second man in the fat men's race. The team for the tug of war brought to the park by Mr. McKinley also carried off the honors in that contest.

Besides there were contests which required considerable intellectual effort, such as a word contest and poems. The prize for the broad jump went to Mr. James Gillie. The tub race called forth probably the most laughs and was won by Jesse Metcalf. In the one hundred yard dash the honors went to A. Gallmier, James Gillie and J. G. Pence in the order named.

UP TO DADDY.

My hanky's got mefume on it,
An', wee, it smells so good!
I asked dad for some of it,
An' dad said that him would,
An' him reached up on to the shelf—
My dad's so awful tall—
An' got the bottle, 'cause me couldn't
Reach up there at all.

Dad said, "I'm thinkin', Snookums,
If you was just a bit—
A wee bit—bigger than you are
You'd not have asked for it."
I wonder if my daddy knew
How I squirmed round inside
When him said that, because I had
Dess reached an' tried an' tried.

I wonder 'f when dad putted it
On my hanky he knowed
That I had asked mamma for
Some of it 'fore her goed
To town. I didn't tell him
When her comes home again
An' askys where I getted it
Snookums will have to splain.

But dad'll be here when her comes,
An' him'll twist a curl
Around my ear, an' him'll say,
"Honey, don't scold my girl!"
An' mamma will roll up her eyes
An' say what can her do,
An' her'll say, "She's a spoiled girl,
An' it's because o' you."

But anyhow my hanky's got
Mefume on it, an', wee,
It smells so good that I am glad
My dad's so good to me!
An' him fordot to put it up,
Or maybe him don't cares,
An' I'm 'll put some on my doll
When daddy goes downstairs.

An' my doll will be smelly,
An' so will be my dress.
An' I'll mefume my hanky
A little more, I guess.
An' make the whole world smelly
'Fore mamma comes again,
An' nen I reckon daddy
Will be asked to splain.

His Boots.

Major Green said to his servant one morning: "James, I have left my mess boots out. I want them soled."

"Yes, sir," the servant answered.

The major, dressing for dinner that night, said again, "I suppose, James, that you did as I told you about those boots?"

James laid 25 cents on the bureau. "Yes, sir," said he, "and this is all I could get for them, though the corporal who bought 'em said he'd given half a dollar if pay day hadn't been so far off."—Argonaut.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid, an irritating, inflammatory accumulation, which gets into the circulation because of weak kidneys, constipation, indigestion, and other physical irregularities which are usually considered of no importance. Nothing applied externally can ever reach the seat of this trouble; the most such treatment can do is soothe the pains temporarily; while potash and other mineral medicines really add to the acidity of the blood, and this fluid therefore continually grows more acrid and vitiated. Then instead of nourishing the different muscles and joints, keeping them in a normally supple and elastic condition, it gradually hardens and stiffens them by drying up the natural oils and fluids. Rheumatism can never be cured until the blood is purified. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and driving the cause from the system. It strengthens and invigorates the blood so that instead of a sour, weak stream, depositing acrid and painful corrosive matter in the muscles, joints and bones, it nourishes the entire body with pure, rich blood and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. contains no potash, alkali or other harmful mineral, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks of great purifying and tonic properties. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.

MRS. DOLBY'S TALKS

She Has Some More Grievances Against the Deacon.

HE CALMLY READS HIS PAPER

Is Not Perturbed, In the, Least as She Tells Him of the Many Wicked Things He Has Done—Plans to Poison Herself.

[Copyright, 1909, by T. C. McClure.]

At the supper table Mrs. Dolby remarked that as spring would soon be here the cellar ought to be whitewashed, and the deacon replied that he had some lime at the barn, but would go down to the store and buy a brush. Half an hour later he was doing his errand, but in no great hurry. There were three or four men talking politics, and he lingered for awhile to hear what might be said. He was still at the store when a small boy came in and said that Mrs. Dolby wished him to bring home an ounce of strychnine when he came.

The deacon nodded his head and smiled faintly and went on listening to the talk of tariff revision. It was ten minutes later when he took his leisurely way home. He half expected to find Mrs. Dolby hanging from a hook in the kitchen ceiling, but she was not there. On the contrary, she was in the sitting room and had on her Sunday dress and bonnet. The whitewash brush was laid away till morning, and then the deacon removed his coat and hat and sat down to the center table to peruse a circular he had been handed at the postoffice. It was a circular regarding a silver mine that a Colorado minister was exploiting. For twenty years he had been trying to make folks believe that a Christian life was a good thing, but with such poor success that he had now turned to what he announced as something better.

"YOU WENT AROUND SWINGING YOUR HAT AND WHOOPING AND HURRAHING."

"Samuel Dolby, do you know that I am present?" suddenly exclaimed Mrs. Dolby from where she sat on the lounge.

Yes, Samuel knew. He knew he knew, and she knew he knew, and he regarded the question as so superfluous that he did not answer it. The circular said that the minister had become the one-fourth owner of a mine that was certain to prove a veritable Golconda. Nothing had been neglected in locating it. The scenery was grand, the nearest saloon not half a mile away, and there was a splendid site for a graveyard right on the mine property. An Indian maiden had died for love where the shaft was to be sunk, a grizzly bear had rubbed his fur off on all the rocks around, and there was every reason to believe that in looking for silver they would come across Captain Kidd's buried gold.

"Yes; I am here, and I'm going to talk to you for a few minutes before I go," came from Mrs. Dolby. "I sent little Tommy Brown after you to tell you to buy pizen because I can live no longer. You hadn't been gone five minutes when Mrs. Brown came in. She pretended that she wanted to get my recipe for making soft soap, but I knew she had something else on her mind. I told her she had got to tell me what it was, and after awhile she let it out. Oh, Samuel, how could you do such things?"

There was a sad wail in Mrs. Dolby's voice and tears in her eyes, but the deacon did not melt. That circular read as slick and easy as a rivulet of molasses running across the floor. With only a cash capital of $15 and one workman, who was lame and lazy at that, they uncovered nearly $50,000 worth of ore in three months, and the man was still rooting. The "Mocking Bird," as the mine was called, was going to be the greatest thing on earth for widows and orphans to invest in, and special rates would be given all ministers.

What Mrs. Brown Said.

"Mrs. Brown said that she knew I was not long for this world and she was not one to cut my days short, but she felt that there were some things she ought to tell me. Samuel, you went down town on the night of presidential election."

Such was the fact, as the deacon admitted to himself.

"You was anxious to hear who was elected, and you said you'd be home early. It was nearly midnight when you got home, and for two hours I had been walking the floor and wondering if I was a widder. You remember it, don't you, Samuel?"

Samuel did, but he made no reply. You can't read a silver mine circular promising 400 per cent dividends for 400 years and answer outside questions at the same time.

"When you got down to the postoffice nobody knew yet who was elected. Instead of sitting down on the steps and waiting, you went around swinging your hat and whooping and hurrahing. You offered to bet money, Samuel; you offered to bet our cow and hog; you offered to bet our barn agin a beucoop that your candidate was elected. No wonder they all looked at you as a crazy man, but worse was to come—far worse. Samuel, I must weep—I must. I can't help it."

Samuel did not interfere with the program. He had a good thing in that circular, and he hung to it. The experts who had inspected the mine reported that nature seemed to have collected millions of tons of silver ore from all over the world and shipped it to that one spot and dumped it down to make a good thing for him and others, but more particularly him. Nothing was said as to whether nature got any rebates from the railroads.

"Yes, worse—worse. You got so excited that you offered to bet our minister a year's salary agin a keg of beer! Think of it, Samuel—a keg of beer! It was no wonder that over thirty men were stricken so dumb that they couldn't say a word for ten minutes. Everybody was looking for a thunderbolt to come down from the skies and destroy you. Samuel, did you know what you was saying and doing? You was sunstruck once, you know, and mebbe it was a return of it. Mrs. Brown said that it might be so."

Samuel smiled to himself, but did not take shelter behind the excuse so kindly held out. He had drunk four glasses of hard cider on election night, but he clearly remembered events as they had happened.

"And there's more worse to come, Samuel—more worse!" exclaimed Mrs. Dolby between her sobs. "When the returns finally came in and you found your man was elected you uttered awful yells and went around knocking off hats and crowing like a rooster! Think of it—my husband and a man who was deacon of the church for fourteen years crowing like a rooster! It's a wonder that I don't sink right through the floor! Can you blame me for sending for strychnine? Can you blame me for wanting to perish?"

Stuck to His Reading.

The deacon could have committed himself, but he didn't. He stuck right to that circular, and the more he read of it the more he realized what philanthropists the president and other officers were. He determined to write them a letter of thanks next day if he did no more.

"And you finally came home, Samuel—you finally came home, and you said your feet hurt you, and you had a black eye, and the brim of your hat was gone. You said something about running agin Mr. White's cow on your way home, and I spoke kindly to you, but I have at last learned the truth. You run agin a New York drummer instead of a cow, and it was him that gave you the black eye and ruined your hat. It was Mrs. Brown says it can be proved by twenty different men.

"Out on election night, to begin with!

"Next yelling like a pirate and crowing like a rooster!

"Thirdly, betting the preacher a year's salary agin a keg of beer!

"Fourthly, coming home with a black eye!

"Fifthly, lying about Mr. White's old cow!

"Samuel Dolby, hand over that strychnine and let me take it and die! You must see that I cannot face the people of this village and live no longer."

The deacon laid aside the seductive circular, with a sigh, rose up and wound up the clock, and then, after seeing that the kitchen stove was shut up and the teakettle had plenty of water in it, he started upstairs to bed. Two minutes later Mrs. Dolby followed. She had removed her hat and wiped away the tears, and as she ascended the stairs she said:

"Samuel, my corns are aching agin, and I do really believe we shall wake up in the morning and find a foot of snow on the ground." M. QUAD.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The feature of early trading in the wheat market was an advance of ½c in the price of September delivery due to urgent covering by shorts. The concentration of a big line of September wheat in the hands of a leading elevator interest inspire the demand by shorts. Cables were weak and weather conditions in the northwest was generally clear.

Prices at the opening were ¼c lower to ⅜c higher, Sept. being at 98 to 98¼o and Dec. at 93⅞ to 94c. Within a few minutes Sept. had advanced to 99½c and Dec. to 94⅝c. Part of the gain however was lost later on realizing.

Unsettled weather in the corn belt and predictions of rain in Nebraska caused moderate weakness in the corn market. Sept. opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 65¾c to 65⅝c and advanced to 65⅝c on firmness of wheat.

Oats were firm because of buying by commission houses, the demand meeting with scanty offerings. Sept. opened a shade to ⅜c higher at 36½@36⅝c and for a time held within that range.

Provisions were steady despite liberal receipts of live hogs. Local packers gave the market fair support. Prices at the start were unchanged to ten higher.

The Close.

Prices at the close were as follows:

Wheat—Sept., 99¼@99⅜c; Dec., 95@95¼c; May, 98⅜c.

Corn—Sept., 65⅞c; Dec., 56¼@56⅜c; May, 57¼c.

Oats—Sept., 37¼c; Dec., 37¼@37⅜c; May, 39⅜c.

Pork—Sept., $22.45; Pan., $17.65.

Ribs—Sept., $11.80; ct., $11.62½; Jan., $9.22½.

Lard—Sept., $12.12½; Oct., $12.17½; Nov. $11.72½; Jan., $10.42½.

Rye—Cash, 72c; Sept., 68c; Dec., 66c.

Barley—Cash, 50@65c.

Clover—Cash, $11.30; March, $12.05@12.35.

Timothy, $3.60; Oct., $3.65.

Car Lot Receipts.

Wheat—Receipts were 68 cars, with 18 of contract grade.

Corn—Receipts were 199 cars, with 156 of contract grade.

Oats—Receipts were 405 cars.

Total receipts of wheat at Chicago, Minneapolis and Duluth today were 524 cars, compared with 327 cars last week and 206 cars the corresponding day a year ago.

New York Grain and Provisions.

New York, Aug. 27.—Flour—Receipts 31,061; sales, 1,500. Unsettled with a quiet trade. Minnesota patents $5.10@6.00 old; winter straights, $4.95@5.10 new; Minnesota bakers, $5.15@5.50 old; winter extras, $4.30@4.75 new; winter patents, $5.25@6.00 new; winter low grades, $4.20@4.56 new; Kansas straights, $4.75@5.00 new.

Wheat—Receipts 56,800. A jump in Sept. wheat at Chicago this morning was reflected in high prices elsewhere, advancing ¼c on covering of shorts. Higher cables, small receipts and large Argentine shipments also had an influence. Dec., $1.02½@1.03; May, $1.04@1.04⅛.

Rye—Market dull; No. 2 western, 76c, nominal, f. o. b. New York.

Corn—Receipts, 28,125.

Beef—Market steady.

Pork—Market steady; mess, $22.25@22.75.

Lard—Market easy; western, $12.25@12.35.

Sugar—Raw, market steady; fai refining, $3.61; centrifugal, 96 test, $4.11; molases sugar, $3.33; refined sugar market steady; crushed, $5.75; powdered, $5.15; granulated, $5.05.

Petroleum—Market steady; refined, all ports, $8.20@8.25.

Coffee—Market quiet; No. 7 Rio, 7¼c; No. 4 Santos, 8½@9c.

Molasses—Market dull; New Orleans, 28@42c.

Chicago Cash Grain.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 27.—Cash wheat: No. 2 red, $1.05@1.07; No. 3 red, 98c@$1.03 No. 2 hard, $1.01½@1.04; No. 3 hard, 96c@$1.00; No. 2 northern, $1.02@1.03; No. 3 northern, 94c@$1.01.

Corn—No. 2, 68¼@68½c; No. 2 white, 69½c; No. 2 yellow, 71@71¼c; No. 3, 68¼c; No. 3 yellow, 70¾@71c; No. 4, 66@67¼c.

STOCK AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Aug. 27.—The opening of the stock market today was in decided contrast with yesterday's weak closing this morning's market displaying buoyancy on heavy purchases. Southern Pacific rose 2¾ to 128½ and Union Pacific to 199½ and the preferred 1¾. The Harriman group made the largest gains. Northern Pacific was up 1½ and Reading, Peoples Gas, United States Steel preferred, Atchison and Erie 1. A factor in the strength of the market was the advance in Americans in the London market.

Union Pacific and Southern Pacific went fractionally higher in common with the rest of the market before the selling orders became heavy enough to drive Union Pacific 1½ and Southern Pacific 1¼. The list made a fresh start upward when the selling orders had been cleaned up and prices generally went above the previous high level. Union Pacific touched 200½, a rise of 2½ and the rest of the market was up between 1 and 2 points. New York Central, United States Steel and St. Paul were taken freely on this movement. The southern group of stocks were rather heavy and Delaware and Hudson lost 1½. Before 11 o'clock the market began to yield again under the influence of a reaction of 1¾ in Union Pacific.

After a long period of dullness in which prices moved aimlessly the bears got the upper hand and pushed some of the important stocks below the low prices of yesterday, in Reading, New York Central and the United States Steel stocks. In general the list was driven back to about parity with the final prices of yesterday. There had been a considerable contest going on with large bull and bear interest in control of the market and considerable stock changed hands on the decline.

The shorts had an uneasy time of it when the market began to reflect strong bullish manipulation. Large buying orders were executed simultaneously in the leading stocks which converted an otherwise lathargic market into one of pronounced activity and strength. The top prices of the day began to be made as the market responded to the buying for both accounts. Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were quoted 8 points above yesterday's closing; Consolidated Gas 2¾, United States Rubber 2½ and St. Paul, New York Central, Amalgamated Smelting and International Pump 2 to 2¼. The high price was attractive to the room traders and they began to sell out, causing a relapse of a point in some issues.

LOCAL MARKET EPITOME.

Chickens, a scarcity on the local streets, are expected to be in heavy Saturday, according to the dope along Barr street today. The price will be between 11 and 14c per pound. The demands for that line have been insistent and the farmers are to respond. There will be a good market in all lines providing good weather is dealt out. No prices are expected to change. The markets this morning were fair but featureless.

The grain lines showed no changes today.

DEATHBED ACCUSATIONS.

Girl Accused Woman of Forcing Her to Take Poison.

Attica, Ind., Aug. 27.—The death of Miss May Best, a girl not yet fourteen years old, from paris green poisoning, has thrown the village of Winthrop, six miles north of this city, into a ferment. It was supposed the girl had committed suicide, but shortly before her death she made a statement to her father in which she declared that Mrs. John Yocum, wife of a railway section foreman at Winthrop, had forced her to take the drug. She also accused the husband of wrong doing.

Yocum has left and his wife is under surveillance while the Warren county coroner is making an investigation. The girl's mother is dead and she kept house for her father, Frank Best, an industrious and respectable citizen. The girl spent much time at Yocum's home, and the neighbors declare that the woman exercised an unusual influence over her. She possessed much beauty and had borne a spotless reputation. The feeling is high against Yocum and mob violence was freely discussed last night.

The Wabash had a good business in the way of excursionists to Niagara Falls yesterday, selling forty-two tickets at this point. The company also sold ten tickets to Muskogee lakes at this point. This closes the excursion business to the Falls over that line for this season.

INFORMATION FOR TEACHERS.

State Manual and Uniform Course of Study Sent Out.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 27.—Sixteen thousand copies of the state manual and uniform course of study for the common schools of the state have been mailed from the office of the state superintendent of public instruction to the county superintendents for distribution among the teachers. The manuals are about two months later in appearing this year than in previous years, because of delay occasioned by the failure of the state board of school book commissioners to find a suitable text book for primary geography after several weeks' effort. When it was decided not to use a text book during the coming year, a committee from the board was appointed to prepare an outline for primary and elementary geography work and the outline is included in the manual. An outline for proper presentation of the New Era system of penmanship was furnished by the publishing house supplying the copy books, and is included in the manual. The manual also gives more attention, this year, to the teaching of hygiene and sanitation.

Autumn Apparel For Women

An attractive showing of tailored suits and three-piece gowns—styles that reveal the season's approved ideas in correct attire. All the new colorings are shown in all the fashionable suitings. Whether your taste turns toward the plain-tailored effects or the elaborately trimmed, we cannot fail to satisfy you. Some extremely stylish models, priced from $30 to $50.

Silk Waists and Costumes

Fashionable designers have produced some beautiful effects, handsomely made and lavishly trimmed with braids. A range of exquisite models at very moderate prices is shown here for your selection.

In the Dress Goods

You will find an extensive display of the new fabrics—much that is interesting in new weaves and colorings. The tendency of fashion in autumn dress goods is well defined in our exhibit. Among the newest gown fabrics will be found Homespuns, Diagonals, Prunellas, Zeppeline, Barcelona, Epingle, Crepe Egypta, Satin Rachel, Marseille, Silk and Wool Poplins, Broadcloths and Serges. The price range is wide—from 75c to $3.50 a yard.

A fine assortment of tailor-suitings priced from $1 to $3 a yard.

Furs

The weather is not suggestive of furs just now, but if you have a fur thought in your mind for winter let us suggest that now is a good time to put it into action. We have to look ahead; why not you? The reasons for our buying early is that selection and price are better. You get the benefit of both if you buy now.

House Jackets

COOL, COMFORTABLE AND LOW PRICES

The neatness with which these new house jackets and kimonas are made is the first feature that strikes the eye. They're as carefully made as a shirt waist or blouse—the "cut" is just right and the workmanship above criticism.

White garments covered with delicately printed flowers, fine black stripes, wee dots and neat figures—that's a brief description of the lawns of which these jackets are made. Most every style you ask for—with Dutch neck, square or V-shape, trimmed with matched bands, embroideries and laces.

The short kimonas and sacques start at 50c for a splendid value—75c, $1.00, $1.50 and $1.75. Long kimonas are priced from $1.50 to $3.50.

Among the New Books

Most talked about are "The Calling of Dan Matthews," by Harold Bell Wright, author of "The Shepherd of the Hills;" "A Woman for Mayor," by Helen Winslow; "The Further Adventures of Quincy Adams Sawyer," by Charles Felton Pidgin; "The Patience of John Morlan," by Mary Dillon; "The Other Side of the Door," by Lucia Chamberlain; "Much Ado About Peter," by Jean Webster— all at $1.08. "Miss Minerva and William Green Hill" at 89c.

A vacation with these books as companions is pretty sure to be interesting.

"SUGAR AND SPICE AND EVERYTHING NICE"

Means chowder, chili sauce and all the other relishes housekeepers are so busy making these days. It's easy work, however, if one has the right sort of food chopper. Women who know say the "Steinfeld" is the best on the market. These are the reasons why:

It is adjustable and may be instantly changed by the turn of a single thumb screw to cut coarse, medium, fine and extra fine while operating.

Easy to clean—absolutely sanitary.

No knives to adjust, sharpen or lose.

Chops every variety of food—meats, fish, vegetables, nuts, chocolate, cocoanut, fruits; pulverizes crackers, spices, stale bread; grinds coffee and grates horseradish.

Let us show you the "Steinfeld" in the basement.

CITY BREVITIES.

Deputy Auditor Cal Brown was at Indianapolis yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Swain, of South Broadway, are gratified to learn of the prospective return to Fort Wayne in September of their only son, Arthur Swain, after an absence of three years and eight months. The young man has completed a course in mechanical drawing, and a good position is awaiting him on his return.

Traction officials who were enjoying a two-days' trip to Detroit in the special car Lawton arrived in the city on their return at 12:15 o'clock this morning, after a fast trip home, with General Manager Emmons as motorman a portion of the distance. The car crew was composed of Smith and Deatrick, and Caterer E. J. Longfield was in charge of the commisary department, which was handled in faultless style.

If its a good thing Seavey's have it

Have a Lawn Like Velvet

by getting a mower that cuts the grass evenly and smoothly without hacking it. Paying a trifle more for the best gives you satisfaction that you could not find in a cheaper grade. A single look will show you the merits of the one we want to sell you. Our stock of Lawn Mowers is complete and offers a good selection.

If you intend purchasing a canvas grass catcher for your mower, some Rubber Lawn Hose, a Sprinkler, a Nozzle or anything to help improve the appearance of your lawn, call on us.
